FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

Armed Forces Institute of Pathology

BY BRIG. GEN. ELBERT DeCOURSEY, MC,
USA

Director, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology

IN a special field where service is by far the most important link in any lifeline, the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D. C., occupies a unique position in relation to "help wanted" calls from armed forces medical units located throughout the world.

Ready to respond immediately are its four major departments—the Department of Pathology, the American Registry of Pathology, the Medical Illustration Service and the Medical Museum. All are jointly staffed and equally shared by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

The Department of Pathology is one of the Institute's most highly diversified and specialized activities. Day after day, surgical and autopsy materials from widespread sources are received in the departmental laboratories. In the course of a typical day the professional staff processes more than 135 cases for diagnosis, consultation and review. The facilities of the Institute are used by the medical services of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, Veterans Administration and the U. S. Public Health Service.

An important part of the Institute's program is the American Registry of Pathology, an administrative facility, which serves as a central agency for the collection of pathological material, pertinent clinical records and laboratory data in specific fields of pathology. It is composed of 20 individual registries sponsored by national medical, dental and veterinary societies.

Each registry specializes in the diseases of its particular field, such as, the eyes, skin, oral regions, bones, and other organs and body systems. The registries are also of great value to civilian practitioners who may submit pathologic material for consultation through their local pathologist. Thus, the Institute in no way competes with civilian pathologists, but rather strives to be of help to them in a consultative capacity.

All materials and records received at the Institute are indexed as to origin, diagnoses, and contributor, thereby constituting an invaluable source for research and statistical analysis.

Stymied by UMT, Pay Talk Due Next Week

Because of legislative pressure on the Universal Military Training bill, the Senate Armed Services Committee devoted its Tuesday, 19 Feb., session to that subject and deferred further discussion of the Service pay increase bill until later.

Later in the week, when final decisions had been made as to its report on UMT the committee decided to call a meeting for Monday, 25 Feb., for the specific purpose of discussing the form in which it will recommend passage of the over-all pay increase bill and the combat pay bill.

It has been rather definitely decided that the general increase and combat pay will be reported as separate bills. The committee, however, will consider them at the same time so that they may consider the relationship that one may have to the other.

Meanwhile, printed copies of the entire transcript of the committee's hearings on pay have been received and distributed to each member so that those who did not attend the hearings may read the arguments presented there by Secretary Lovett, Assistant Secretary Rosenberg and the top military chiefs of the Services.

As reported in last week's JOURNAL, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, wrote a strong letter to Chairman Russell endorsing the pay bill and urging its prompt passage. This will have a good effect upon the members, most all of whom have great respect for the general's views.

Statistics Tell Story of Continued W.O. Injustice

(New Air Force Warrant Officers on Page 768)

Statistics obtained by THE JOURNAL this week reveal how the warrant officers of the Army and Air Force still have not been granted the promotion opportunities which Congress intended.

In enacting the Career Compensation Act in 1949, Congress created four warrant officer ranks and envisaged that qualified warrant officers would be able to advance on a basis equitable with the progress of enlisted men and officers.

But Congress did not reckon with the devastating effect on warrant officer careers of the ill-timed Department of Defense economy campaign just prior to outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

Arbitrary ceilings were imposed on warrant officer advancements. No more than 3 per cent could be in W-3; no more than 7 per cent in W-4. The ceiling was not lifted when Korea made obsolete all other personnel economy orders.

The limits on promotions finally have been lifted and promotions are being made; but the Department of Defense will have to O.K. accelerated promotions for warrant officers if the penalties imposed upon this group during the past two years are to be rectified.

The Department of Defense has stated it wants every qualified warrant officer to have the opportunity to reach W-4 prior to retirement. The way to make good this promise is to authorize warrant officer promotions to those who are qualified in sufficient numbers to make up for the lost opportunities when the

Hoover Group Renews Bitter Attack on Service Medical and Engineer Work

The Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report met this week in Washington, D. C., to summarize its activities prior to disbanding on 31 May in advance of the political conventions.

Once again, the Committee expressed strong criticism—sometimes in derogatory terms—of aspects of the military medical program and the civil works functions of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Included in what is described as the "Big Six" of the Committee's remaining objectives are proposals to integrate Federal medical services by transferring service hospitals and some medical personnel to a proposed civilian agency, and to combine the civil functions of the Corps of Engineers with those of the Bureau of Reclamation.

Hearings on legislation supporting the two proposals affecting the Armed Forces are scheduled for early action on Capitol Hill. Both bills face strong opposition.

It was in an address on "The Need For An Improved Federal Medical System" that particularly strong charges were made.

That speech was delivered by Dr. Adrian H. Scolten, Chairman of the National Doctors Committee for Improved Federal Medical Services, State of Maine.

Dr. Scolten said that "13,000 physicians will be continually needed for military duty in the proposed 3.5 million man Army. What authority decided that to care for each 1000 healthy young men 3.7 doctors are needed, I am not prepared to say," he continued.

Dr. Scolten makes no mention in his address of the Department of Defense Medical Policy Council which must approve ratios of doctors to military personnel.

His analysis of 3.7 doctors for each 1000 "healthy" young men omits, of course, the treatment of battle casualties, retired personnel, and dependents.

In discussing the allocation of nurses among civilian and Federal agencies, Dr. Scolten states that 1.5 nurses out of every

Local Taxes Delay Housing, Says Report

A recommendation that Congress make clear that housing projects on military bases are not subject to state or local taxes where no services are rendered is contained in a staff report submitted this week to members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency.

The report, rendered by Joseph B. McMurray, staff director, and Raimond Bowles of the committee's professional staff, declared that in some instances these local taxes would increase the rentals by as much as $23 a month.

"We have come across a few cases," the report states, "where the city, local governing body or the State is taxing or attempting to tax projects that are within the military base. The locality renders no service whatsoever—school, police, fire, water, sewage, etc. In some cases this would increase the rentals by as much as $23 a month and would cause the projects to be foreclosed. It has already delayed the start of some of the projects until the Courts or the Congress settles the question. It is our suggestion that the Congress make clear what we believe was its intent that such projects on military bases not be taxed where no services are rendered, or where reimbursement payments are made for such services that are rendered."

Some of the other conclusions in the report are as follows:

The Wherry-Maybank Housing Act was subject to "inordinate delay in getting underway" because of the inexperience of all, particularly the military. However, it has provided "more military housing in the same period than ever before in history." The Air Force has particularly benefitted, having received "six times as much housing under this act as compared with the housing constructed on its installations in its entire history."

Public Quarters

"It was generally admitted by most of the military that it provided more housing for the dollar than the public quarters did, but most of them insisted that it would be more economical in the long run and better for security reasons if all the housing (presumably at the new lower costs) were owned and operated by the military."

In the matter of public housing, the report felt that something should be done concerning those Service personnel living in public quarters which are far below the rental value represented in the allowances they lose. In this respect the report said:

"While it was outside of this Committee's direct jurisdiction, but is related to the housing problem, we were concerned by some of the public quarters that we inspected. We saw on a number of bases temporary housing which, while

F86's Busy Fighting MIG's; Lull on Ground

Raiding units of both sides fought a series of light engagements along much of the land battlefield this week, with no important change in the positions of the opposing forces. These light contacts were only minor interruptions of the general lull in ground fighting that has characterized Korean land operations during the past few weeks.

In the air this week, there were several combats in which greatly outnumbered American Sabre jets shot down ten MIG jet fighters, probably destroyed another and damaged eight more. Despite bad weather, large numbers of enemy jet planes were sighted almost every day and elements of these formations were engaged by American aircraft. Our losses, if any, in these combats were not reported.

During the week, Allied land-based and carrier-based bombers and fighter-bombers braved unfavorable flying conditions during much of the week to attack enemy communications lines, bridges, transport facilities, gun positions, and front-line troops, inflicting heavy damage, and taking a high toll of casualties. On a few occasions, enemy repair crews, taking advantage of a heavy overcast, attempted to rebuild damaged rail lines, and were caught by the machine guns of Allied planes and dispersed with heavy losses.

Keep Blockade

Allied warships maintained a tight blockade of both coasts of North Korea. The patrolling naval vessels bombarded enemy shore installations and interdicted Red coastal traffic by sea, rail and highway. The close siege of Wonsan entered its second year this week, the longest naval blockade of this character in the history of warfare.

The Far East headquarters of the United Nations this week announced that the veteran American 24th Division had been transferred from Korea to Japan. It has been replaced in Korea by the 40th Division, a unit of the California National Guard. The 24th Division has been assigned a training mission as part of the United States defense force in Japan.

Elements of the 24th Division were the first American ground troops to enter the Korean war. They were rushed into action from Japan a few days after the North Korean Reds invaded South Korea. Other units of the division followed and all were quickly engaged in extremely difficult holding and delaying operations, while the United Nations Korean command was being built up to defend the rapidly shrinking Pusan perimeter of the small Allied toehold on the Korean peninsula. The division also played a major part in the great United Nations counter-offensive that drove the Reds from South Korea, and in the bitter battles near the 38th parallel, when the Chinese Reds entered the conflict to save the North Koreans from annihilation.

Only 2 Charter Members

It is reported that only two individuals who were members of the division when it moved into Korea remain with the organization. Many were killed or wounded in the numerous engagements in which the division participated, and others, like Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, the original division commander, are in the hands of the enemy. Nearly all the rest have returned to the United States on rotation, and their places have been taken by soldiers sent from this country during the past few months. Some late arrivals were transferred to the 40th Division in Korea.

Previously, the American 1st Cavalry Division, which had served in Korea nearly as long as the 24th Division, was transferred to Japan, and it is now stationed in Hokkaido, the most northerly island of the Japanese group, where in some places it is within artillery range of Russian-occupied territory. The 1st Cavalry Division was replaced in Korea by the 45th National Guard Division.

On the land front in Western Korea this week, a United Nations raiding party engaged an enemy platoon northwest of Korangpo-ri in two small arms and automatic weapons firefights. The enemy withdrew from both engagements and the Allied patrol reached its objective, but later returned to its own lines. Twenty of the enemy were reported killed in the brief actions.

South of Panmunjom, site of the truce conference, two enemy squads probed an advance United Nations position, but withdrew after a half-hour fight. A Red platoon also probed an Allied outpost north of Chorwon, but pulled back after encountering heavy fire. Elsewhere on the western front only light contacts were reported.

Sharp Fights

There was a series of sharp fights between small groups east of the Pukhan River on the central front. The Reds took an advance position in this area, but on the following day an Allied counter-attack drove them out of it, and the position was restored to United Nations control. The counter-attacking unit received heavy artillery and automatic weapons fire, but Allied supporting artillery fire forced the enemy to withdraw. Subsequent attacks by the Reds on this position were repulsed.

Northwest of Kumwha, two Communist squads made a light probing attack on an Allied advance position, but were driven off after an exchange of small arms, automatic weapons and mortar fire. An Allied tank-infantry raiding team overran a reinforced enemy platoon in bunkers south of Pyonggang. East of Kum-song, another Allied raiding party engaged an enemy group of undetermined size, and withdrew after encountering hand grenades and intense small arms and automatic weapons fire.

The area west of the Mundung-ni Valley continued active during most of the week. In this region, a United Nations patrol was pinned down by an enemy group of unascertained strength. However, Allied reinforcements, including tanks, enabled the trapped unit to disengage and return to United Nations lines. Later, an enemy probing attack succeeded in taking an Allied advance position in the same area, but the Reds were driven off by a concentration of mortar fire, and the position was reoccupied by United Nations troops. Subsequent light attacks by the enemy were easily repulsed.

Punch Bowl Attacked

An Allied position northwest of the Punch Bowl was attacked by a small enemy group, which was later dislodged and driven back by heavy fire from Allied small arms, automatic weapons and mortars. Light contact with small enemy units developed all along the eastern front, but no important action occurred.

Bombardment of enemy shore installations along the east coast of North Korea by Allied warships was featured this week by the completion of a year of continuous siege of the important enemy-held port of Wonsan, the longest in history, and there were no indications of any cessation of the blockade. Allied naval vessels continued this week to pound Wonsan, Hungnam and Songjin, all east coast ports of importance. Naval surface units of the Allied fleet placed direct and indirect fire on enemy troops, supply buildings, roads, railways, and shore targets of opportunity.

Numerous rail cuts on the Northeastern Korean transport system were made by American carrier-based planes. Enemy troops in the Wonsan-Kowon area were attacked, trucks were destroyed or damaged, boxcars were knocked out and a tank was damaged on other strikes by American naval aircraft. In the west central area, many enemy-held buildings were destroyed or damaged by Allied carrier-based planes.

Sabre Jets Busy

American F-86 Sabre Jets patrolling Northwest Korea were engaged frequently this week with formations of enemy MIG-15 jet planes. In the course of these actions the American aircraft shot down 10 Red planes, probably destroyed another and damaged 8.

The first of the series of air battles occurred on Sunday, 17 Feb., when 53 Sabre Jets, flying cover for fighter-bombers, ran into approximately 100 Red MIGs over Northwest Korea. In the ensuing fight three Communist planes were shot down, another was probably destroyed, and a fifth was damaged.

On the following day, 40 enemy jet fighters tried unsuccessfully to break through a screen of 19 Sabres protecting a raid by Allied fighter-bombers. In the ensuing encounter two Red MIGs were damaged. During the day about 250 enemy aircraft in four groups were sighted, but most of them showed no inclination for combat.

Three Red planes were shot down by Sabres on 19 Feb. in two blazing battles over Northwest Korea. During the forenoon the fight was between 27 American planes and elements of an enemy flight of nearly 100 MIGs. In the afternoon 26 Sabres fought 50 others. The afternoon fight started near Sinanju and ended at the Yalu River when the remaining MIGs fled to safety in Manchuria. On that day 100 enemy planes were sighted during the forenoon and 200 in the afternoon.

More MIG's Hit

On 20 Feb. the Sabre Jets made another bag of 2 enemy planes destroyed, with 5 others damaged, in two fast fights over Northwest Korea. In a morning battle American Sabre Jet pilots damaged 3 enemy jets, and in the afternoon 25 Sabres fought 70 Russian-built MIGs for a quarter hour, shooting down two and damaging two others.

A flight of 27 American Sabres caught a formation of 20 MIGs on Thursday, 21 Feb., in Northwest Korea, and shot down two enemy planes. The battle was fought for 20 minutes in cloudy North Korean skies at altitudes from 25,000 to 40,000 feet. In recent engagements the Red jet planes have remained at extremely high altitudes, where they are considered to have some advantage over the American Sabres.

In addition to the damage inflicted on enemy aircraft by American Sabres the Allied fighter-bombers in low-level attacks scored many cuts on rail lines along main routes and knocked out locomotives and rail cars. In night operations medium and light bombers struck the important Red railway bypass bridge at Sinanju, flew close air support for Allied front-line ground troops, and continued their attacks on enemy vehicular traffic.

In a statement on the progress of the first six months of "Operation Strangle," designed to disrupt Red logistical support of front-line troops the Far East Air Force announced that during that period American F-86 Sabre Jets had destroyed 119 MIG-15s, probably destroyed 13, and damaged 119. Eight of those destroyed were caught on the ground at the Uiju airfield. The others were destroyed or damaged in air combat.

143 Planes Destroyed

Eight enemy TU-2 twin-engine bombers and 3 single-engine LA-9 fighters were also shot down by Sabre Jet pilots, and 3 TU-2s were damaged. Other Allied planes also accounted for some of the enemy aircraft losses. During the period, 143 enemy planes were destroyed by the Far East Air Force, 23 probably destroyed, and 229 damaged. Of the total all except 14 were MIG jets.

In the same period, 34 Far East Air Force planes were shot down by MIGs. They included 15 Sabre Jets, 4 MK-8s, 4 B-29 medium bombers, 10 fighter-bombers, and one jet photo reconnaissance plane. From increasingly accurate enemy ground fire the Far East Air Force lost 162 planes of all types, including fighter-bombers, spotter control planes, rescue craft, and photo reconnaissance planes. Many members of the crews and individual pilots were rescued.

Included in the damage inflicted by Far East airplanes during the past six months were 16,000 cuts in rail lines, 9,000 casualties inflicted, and 2,000 gun positions silenced. In addition the Far East Air Force planes damaged or destroyed 470 locomotives, 10,400 railway cars, 955 bridges, 180 tunnels, 100 tanks, 27,500 vehicles, 265 supply dumps, and 28,700 buildings.

Casualty Estimate

The Defense Department estimated this week that enemy casualties from the beginning of the Korean war through 6 Feb. 1952, total 1,615,593, including 37,859 interned North Korean civilians, an increase of 14,243 since the last previous estimate as of 25 Jan. 1952. Of the total 740,061, not including civilian internees, were sustained by the North Korean Reds, and 837,673 by the Chinese Communists.

The North Koreans are estimated to have lost 464,721 in killed and wounded, 163,817 in sick and injured, 111,523 in military prisoners of war and 37,859 in civilian internees. The Chinese lost 677,378 in battle casualties, and 139,541 in non-battle casualties, with 20,754 held by the Allies as prisoners of war.

Army Comptroller Reports

An account of how the Office of the Comptroller of the Army is striving to achieve increased efficiency throughout the Army was related late last week by Lt. Gen. R. S. McLain, USA, to a House Armed Services subcommittee on procurement.

General McLain, who has been Comptroller of the Army since creation of the office in August, 1949, gave this report to the Congressmen:

"Your interest in efficiency of the Army. This is a field in which I have devoted a major part of my time and is a principal objective of my office. Since taking charge, we have made a complete survey of the Corps of Engineers and the Chemical Corps. These surveys were a cooperative effort under the mentorship of the Comptroller, with participation by the General Staff section concerned and the Technical Services themselves. All of the findings pointed toward better control or better management. Many of the findings were implemented as soon as the situation was determined. A few of the findings have led to further investigation by The Inspector General. Some of the findings have resulted in a saving of considerable money. Typical in the Engineers was a survey of the manner of selecting and cutting timber from public forests; and in one of the Technical Services, the manner of handling salvage. Both of these save considerable money.

"The Chiefs of the Technical Services are essentially professional men. They are interested in equipping the Armed Forces with the product with which they are familiar and the performance of that product in the hands of the troops. They are seldom experts in organization and procedure. They normally take the organizational machinery as it exists, and strive for the end product. The surveys we are undertaking will examine and overhaul the organization and procedural structure. Some of the findings can be corrected by the Commander on the spot; others will require action by higher authority; some may require additional legislation.

Internal Audit

"In addition to surveys, we have had under study for some 18 months a matter of Internal Audit, which we have developed as a means for examining the accounting and audit machinery of the various activities in the Army. This piece of machinery has been developed under a plan consistent with the policies of the Comptroller of the Department of Defense, the Bureau of the Budget, and the General Accounting Office. The initial survey in this field is now under way in the Signal Corps and will be expanded to the other Services as rapidly as possible.

"I set up in my office what is known as an Accounting and Financial Policy group, which is developing the charters and policies and principles to carry out the direction of Congress to put Industrial and Management Funds in various installations of the Army. That program is well under way and is being expanded as rapidly as our available manpower will permit. Such funds have been established at:

"Rocky Mountain Arsenal (Chemical Corps), Denver, Colo;
"Picatinny Arsenal (Ordnance Corps), Dover, Dela.
"Quartermaster Depot, Jeffersonville, Ind.
"Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, Pa.
"St. Louis Printing Plant (Adjutant General), Mo.
"Ogden Printing Plant, Utah.
"Defense Printing Plant, OSD, Pentagon.
"Ordnance Procurement Account, Washington.

Performance Budget

"We have developed and presented to this session of Congress a Budget under the formula called 'Performance Budget,' this for the first time. We have instituted in the Army a system of programming, which I think will be much more effective than anything we have ever undertaken before. There will be three aspects of this subject: (1) The planners will lay out the programs; (2) the administrators will carry out the actions to implement the programs; and (3) the Comptroller of the Army will accomplish the progress and statistical reporting and the review and analysis of these programs. We are attempting at this time to bring the primary programs into more appropriate synchronized relationship to the appropriation titles. We are developing in this Review and Analysis Division machinery to examine quickly not only the fiscal aspects of programming and modifications thereof, but the impact on basic materials.

"All of these plans are under way, with as much progress already made as practical within presently assigned personnel ceilings. These programs, however, necessarily require time to expand over the entire Army structure. We have been restricted in recruiting enough competent personnel. The impact of Korea and the necessity of meeting deadlines on materials for the battlefield draw heavily on our personnel resources.

"It would require some two or three years for us to complete the basic examinations and actions which we have in mind. Thereafter, we expect to set up a consulting service where all elements of the Army may call on the Comptroller for expert advice on any matter of organization and procedure, system, and process that top management of the Army may require. We also expect to make independent examinations within the limits of our capabilities. We believe that this machinery has corrected many acknowledged faults. We believe there are many others which we will correct as fast as we get to them. The advantage of these overall surveys is that they do not merely come up with a few startling facts and leave it there, but they are overall surveys that give the Army's leadership the information necessary to achieve a fully integrated and smooth-running management machine."

Army Temp. Promotions

A hope that the names of Army officers on the eligible list for temporary promotion to captain would be available for publication this week was dashed when officials decided to hold up these names, apparently until selections for all grades are completed.

Late this week, boards were still considering the names of officers outside the zones of consideration for advancement to major, lieutenant colonel and colonel, but were expected to finish work soon. As was reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, there will be about 3350 first lieutenants on the eligible list for advancement to captain. Promotions will be made as vacancies occur.

The best estimate is that, except for the temporary promotions to colonel, all of the eligibles will be advanced by the fall of this year, although changes in budget factors and rate of separations could result in revision of present plans.

Action on Legislation

H.R. 4949. To provide distribution of blank ammunition to veterans organizations for funerals and other ceremonies. Reported, amended, by House Committee on Armed Services.

H.R. 5904. Administration and discipline of the National Security Training Corps. Reported, amended, by House Committee on Armed Services.

H.R. 4419. Authorizes employment of 15 retired members of the armed services as teachers of military science and tactics in the public schools of the District of Columbia. Reported by the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia.

H.R. 6203. Authorizes the retirement (in grade of captain) of Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, USN. Ordered reported to the House Committee on Armed Services by the Durham subcommittee.

H.R. 6288. To appoint women as physicians and specialists in the medical services of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. Ordered reported to the House Committee on Armed Services by the Durham subcommittee.

H.R. 6319. To authorize appointment of a Chief of the Medical Service Corps of the Navy. Ordered reported to the House Committee on Armed Services by the Durham subcommittee.

S. 2441. To provide for the administration and discipline of the National Security Training Corps. Reported, amended, by Senate Committee on Armed Services.

BILLS INTRODUCED

H.R. 6592. Rep. Radwan (R-N.Y.). Amend National Defense Act with respect to court-martial for National Guard and Air National Guard.

H.R. 6593. Rep. Rees (R-Kan.). To provide for distribution of temporary promotions between Regular and Reserve components of the Army serving on active duty.

H.R. 6601. Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.). To extend to Secretary of the Navy and Secretary of the Treasury with respect to the Coast Guard, the authority now vested in the Secretaries of the Army and Air Force with respect to the withholding of officers' pay.

S. 2661. Sen. Case (R-N.J.). To provide that wool purchased by the Armed Forces shall be produced in U. S. as long as such wool is available.

H.R. 6724. Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.). To transfer hospitals between Veterans' Administration and Department of Defense. (Submitted by the Department of Defense.)

Generals Will Head Marine Staff Under New Commandant's Leadership

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., who has allowed no grass to grow under his feet in the slightly less than eight weeks he has been Commandant of the Marine Corps, has taken another step forward in the reorganization of his Headquarters.

Under the newly-instituted reorganization plan, Marine general officers soon will be placed in charge of three General Staff sections, thereby establishing a precedent for the Marine Corps. The move is characteristic of the new Commandant—an officer who knows what he wants and who determinedly brings to any job he undertakes a definite and personal pattern for seeing it accomplished.

The first proofs that the new Marine leader would be an officer of vigorous action and uninhibited decision came shortly after he took over as Commandant when he held one of the most smoothly-engineered press conferences in the history of the Defense Department.

With the knowledge that the press would bombard him with a number of questions on controversial topics, General Shepherd came armed with answers which, while they outlined his exact position, left no room for misinterpretation and provided no fuel for the controversies. Not once did he resort to "No comment," and only twice during the conference was he unwilling to discuss subjects brought up by the press (both, he carefully explained, were classified).

Also during the first conference, he announced that he would bring in a new Assistant Commandant—Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Thomas, who was then Commanding General of the First Marine Division in Korea. The two officers had worked closely on the battlefield and General Shepherd was obviously interested in establishing a Washington command post from which the Marine part in the Korean war could be played out with the best understanding and knowledge.

Since that time, he has completed plans to bring another Korean veteran into the Headquarters fold—Maj. Gen. William O. Brice, now commanding the First Marine Air Wing in Korea. General Brice, who once served as Deputy Director of Aviation, will come back to that office as Director, and Assistant Commandant for Air, sometime in April, thereby adding additional battle-line know-how to the Headquarters team. Orders calling for him to report to Washington were published this week.

Not content, however, with a competent staff which will recognize and be able to deal with the problems arising from day to day in Korea, General Shepherd has started a reorganization of Marine Corps Headquarters which promises greater responsibility for his subordinates.

Heads Secretariat

One of the officers who will be largely responsible for the "new look" at Headquarters is Col. Victor H. Krulak, a trouble-shooter who served as General Shepherd's G-3 during part of World War II, and as his plans and operations officer at Headquarters, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific. Also a Korean veteran—he was serving as Chief of Staff of the First Marine Division when ordered to Washington—Colonel Krulak is well known for his organizational ability, and has been named Secretary of the General Staff under the reorganization.

The plan for the new Headquarters structure was first announced by General Shepherd to top officers of his staff on the day following his assumption of office. It does away with the overburdened Plans and Policies Division, into whose lap fell the major share of all Marine Corps functions, and replaces it with a General Staff organization.

Maj. Gen. Walter W. Wensinger, former head of the "Pots and Pans" Division (as it was facetiously called), has taken over new duties as Deputy Chief of Staff. The other offices and staffs formerly under P&P are being reshuffled into a chain of command which more closely resembles that of the lower Marine echelons where the General Staff system has been followed with greater attention to doctrine.

Name G-3, G-4

Soon, three of the General Staff sections (G-1, G-3 and G-4) will be headed by general officers for the first time in Marine history. This change is being made in line with General Shepherd's belief in greater decentralization of duties and to reduce the number of officers reporting directly to him.

Col. Thomas A. Wornham and Arthur H. Butler, both of whom are on the promotion list to Brigadier General, will be assigned as Assistant Chiefs of Staff, G-3 and G-4, respectively. Colonel Wornham is currently Chief of Staff of General Shepherd's former headquarters, FMF, Pac. Colonel Butler was ordered this week to Marine Corps Headquarters.

Also under the reorganization, history and recruiting—two collateral functions previously assigned to the Director of Public Information, Brig. Gen. John C. McQueen—have been transferred to the G-3 section and the Personnel Department, respectively. History, in the future, will be handled by an Historical Sub-Section of G-3, and Recruiting has been taken over by a newly-established Recruiting Branch in Personnel.

Under the new plan, six agencies at Marine Headquarters will not be subordinated to any General Staff section, but will continue to function under the direction of their own chiefs. They are the Supply Department (headed by the Quartermaster General, Maj. Gen. W. P. T. Hill); the Personnel Department (directed by Maj. Gen. J. T. Walker); the Division of Reserve (headed by Brig. Gen. R. McC. Pate); the Division of Aviation (currently under Brig. Gen. Clayton C. Jerome, but to be taken over this spring by General Brice); the Division of Public Information (headed by General McQueen); and the Administrative and Budget Divisions.

"Personal Contact" Man

Although the new General Staff heads will now report to the Chief of Staff, the changed policy does not mean that General Shepherd will be out of touch with his subordinates. He is a "personal contact" man, and has made it clear that they may come to him when necessary.

At the same time, he has ordered the abandonment of a former procedure—a weekly conference held by the Assistant Commandant—in favor of a Commandant's conference to be called whenever he believes such a meeting will be helpful. The main purpose of such meetings will be to afford him a personal contact with the responsible staff members and to keep him abreast of all major events taking place at the Headquarters.

Two developments which were in the making when General Shepherd became Commandant—the planned activation of a third division and a third air wing—have since been fulfilled. Although both units are now operating at under-strength levels, a drive is underway to fill ranks with new recruits and draftees.

An almost completely new ground-air command has been, or is in the process of being established in Korea. Maj. Gen. John T. Seiden has taken command of the First Division, and only this week Brig. Gen. Merrill B. Twining was named by General Shepherd to be Assistant Division Commander. He will leave the West Coast the first week in March. Maj. Gen. Christian F. Schilt, who commands the First Air Wing in the battle area, is expected to be ordered to Air, FMF, Pac, within the next month, and will be replaced in Korea by General Jerome.

In addition to these major changes which he has brought about at Marine Headquarters and in the field, General Shepherd has made his presence felt all along the line in many smaller ways. An energetic and tireless worker, he is stimulated by his new assignment and has imbued those about him with the same magic stimulus. Like his predecessor, Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, who raised the Marine Corps to one of its greatest periods of prestige, General Shepherd has brought to the Corps a promise of expansion and change, and the addition of new chapters to an already illustrious history.

Air Transportable Army Is Pentagon Objective

Army officials do not consider at all "visionary" the prospect of a completely air transportable force and progress toward that end is being achieved, Brig. Gen. Gerald J. Higgins, USA, declared this week.

General Higgins, Chief of the Organization and Training Division, Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, recounted recent Army aviation developments in an address to members of the Aviation Writers' Association at a luncheon meeting in the National Press Club.

He was accompanied by Lt. Col. Robert R. Williams, a Senior Army Aviator, who is the aircraft expert in General Higgins' Research and Development Branch.

General Higgins stressed that the Army is not in competition with the Air Force in developing its aviation activities. He explained that Army use of aviation is an extension of Air Force functions to meet particular needs of ground forces.

As an example of the close cooperation between the two Services, General Higgins cited the work being done by the Joint Air Transport Board and the Joint Airborne Troop Board at Ft. Bragg, N. C., one headed by an Air Force officer, the other by an Army officer and both sharing the same building.

Colonel Williams related the development of Army aviation from its inception in 1942, when two aircraft were authorized for each Field Artillery battalion to its expanding role today, where Army aircraft, particularly the helicopters, are playing such a dramatic part in the Korean fighting.

Twelve helicopters assigned to the three Army helicopter evacuation units in Korea have evacuated 6,000 casualties, Colonel Williams related. This has resulted in lower mortality rates, diminished suffering and has permitted economy in the utilization of medical personnel.

Aside from its use in the evacuation of casualties, the helicopter permits Army commanders to remain in personal touch with their units. "The helicopter has robbed the battlefield of its privacy," he commented.

He said helicopters have been used successfully in Korea in such other unusual missions as radio relay and surveying assignments.

General Higgins and Colonel Williams also indicated the potential value of one-man helicopters. Such machines would be particularly valuable in reconnaissance work, the Army experts declared.

Great success is expected also of the newly organized helicopter transportation companies, each of which will have 21 cargo helicopters and two small utility cargo helicopters.

General Higgins and Colonel Williams stressed that the widespread utilization of helicopters by the Army is not considered the introduction of a modified airplane into the air transportation system, but instead represents an improvement of traditional ground transportation activities.

"The armies of the world no longer need be tied to the ground," said Colonel Williams.

Seated at the head table with General Higgins and Colonel Williams were: Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN (Ret.), president of the Aircraft Industries' Association; Maj. Gen. Floyd C. Parks, USA, Chief of Information of the Army; Col. Charles Elsenhart, Deputy Chief of Information of the Air Force; James J. Haggerty, Jr., National President of the Aviation Writers' Association, and Le Roy Whitman, Deputy Area Governor AWA.

Low Draft Call

The Selective Service System has been asked to provide only 19,000 men, for the Army 15,000 and Marine Corps 4,000 in April. Draft calls will continue relatively low until the beginning of fiscal year 1953, when there will be a sharp increase to fill vacancies created by the release of Reservists, National Guardsmen and draftees.

Ft. Benning Test Will Be Used Army-Wide

The Army this week began experimenting with a test to determine the combat readiness of any battalion-sized unit.

Approximately 1,200 paratroopers went through the two-day ground warfare test at Ft. Benning, Ga., as guinea pigs to set the level of proficiency for all U. S. Army units of similar size.

Infantry School officials announced that the new tests embody concepts of military tactics developed since the end of World War II.

Project officer for the new tests, Lt. Col. Harold B. Mangold, said top Army officers at Ft. Monroe, Va., center of all Army Field Forces thinking, in January asked for "rush-rush" development of the tests.

Soldiers taking the tests lived and "fought" under near real combat conditions. How well they performed, Colonel Mangold said, will be the level of proficiency expected of any unit taking the test.

A reinforced battalion of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team went through the tests.

Three phases were involved: defense tactics, night withdrawal and attack. Colonel Mangold said emphasis and study is being placed particularly on night withdrawal, a phase of tactics heretofore considered secondary by Army tacticians.

Tests Had Priority

Hundreds of Infantry School officers—about 50 per cent of them Korean veterans—poured their ideas into the test's development which had priority among projects at the Infantry School.

While a platoon of Aggressors attacked, 31 Infantry School umpires watched "battlefield" reaction and decision of every man, from battalion commander to mechanic.

Real battle orders were issued to begin the two-day test. The battalion commander thrust his unit into action with orders to stop an "enemy" force invading Ft. Benning.

During the next 48 hours, the forces put up a fight as similar to those on a battlefield as safety measures could permit.

Only during the attack phase was "live" ammunition used. Real artillery, mortar, hand grenades, machinegun and rifle fire scorched a hilltop objective "occupied" by a theoretical enemy force.

The Aggressor was removed from the fight prior to this deadly barrage.

Every Situation Judged

Every combat situation from battlefield medical treatment to supply requests was judged. Umpires graded every echelon of the participating unit.

If the tests are satisfactory, Army officials are expected to publish them for periodic distribution to all battalion-sized Army units throughout the world.

UNITED STATES ARMY

Battlefield Promotions

In response to a query from THE JOURNAL, Army officials reported this week that there have been a total of 8222 battlefield promotions for officers in Korea.

Advanced for outstanding combat service were 4630 second lieutenants, 2031 first lieutenants, 1100 captains, 434 majors and 28 lieutenant colonels.

The advancements to colonel are subject to approval by the Department of the Army. Battlefield promotions to all other ranks are made on the authority of the Far East Commander.

In addition to the battlefield promotions, a number of enlisted men have been given battlefield commissions in recognition of heroic performance of duty.

Clarifies Re-Up Pay

Department of the Army Circular No. 11, dated 4 Feb., authorizes reenlistment bonus for those who enlisted in the Army for an indefinite period.

Many such Army members whose reenlistment bonuses were not provided for in the 1949 Career Compensation Act, have been querying the Office of the Chief of Finance about this bonus. Circular 11 gives the answers.

Finance officers will now make payments to those on active duty in an enlisted, warrant officer or commissioned status, who were serving in an enlistment for an unspecified period contracted prior to 1 Oct. 1949. This includes those who have been discharged and reenlisted, separated and subsequently ordered into service, and discharged to accept a commission or an appointment as an officer or a warrant officer.

The amount authorized in PL 217, 82d Congress, is $110 on the first anniversary date of such indefinite enlistment subsequent to 1 Oct. 1949, and $60 on each anniversary date thereafter, with a limit of $1,440. For example, a man who enlisted on 21 Oct. 1947, for an unspecified period of time, and who is still on active duty as an enlisted man, would be entitled to $230.

As in the past, persons not on active duty will continue to make claims for this reenlistment bonus through the Army Finance Center, Military Pay Division, St. Louis, Missouri.

Department of the Army Circular No. 11 supercedes DA Message 39322 of 31 Oct. 1951.

New Assistant Chief Nurse

Maj. Patricia F. Dolan, an Army Nurse Corps officer for 16 years, has been named Assistant Chief Nurse at Walter Reed Army Hospital. She replaces Lt. Col. Dorothy E. Ainsworth, who has received an overseas assignment. Major Dolan came to Walter Reed after a course in Nursing Administration at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Mountain Training Plans

A mountain training exercise to be known as Exercise Pine Ridge, involving about 22,500 Army troops, will be held in August and September in the Elkins, W. Va. area, it is announced by General Mark W. Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces.

Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, USA, Commanding General, Second Army, Ft. George G. Meade, Md., has been designated exercise director. He is responsible for the development, planning, support, conduct and control of Pine Ridge.

Col. Warren S. Shelor, Commanding Officer, Mountain and Cold Weather Training Command, Camp Carson, Colo., will provide the necessary technical assistance for the exercise.

Purpose of the exercise is to provide training for cross-country operations in rough mountainous terrain, in both daylight and darkness. Exercise Pine Ridge will open with a two-week indoctrination training period for selected individuals of the units taking part. This will be followed by a four-week unit training period utilizing the skills developed in the indoctrination training.

This is one of a series of maneuvers—including Exercise Snow Fall, recently concluded at Camp Drum, N. Y., and Exercise Long Horn, scheduled at Ft. Hood, Tex., in March and April—designed to train the Army to operate under a variety of conditions.

Gen. Jacobs To Retire

Brig. Gen. Fenton S. Jacobs, USA, Commanding General, Seattle Port of Embarkation, will retire from the Army 30 April. He will be 60 years old 17 April—statutory age for retirement for a brigadier general.

His last day of duty at the Port will be 29 Feb. The following day he will leave for San Francisco for a physical examination at Letterman Army Hospital and subsequent retirement. General and Mrs. Jacobs will make their home in Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.

General Jacobs' retirement will mark the end of 35 years of commissioned service in the U. S. Army, four of which have been spent as Commander of the Seattle Port of Embarkation. He first commanded the Port from February 1946 to February 1947. After serving as Deputy Commander of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, he returned to Seattle in January 1949, to again assume command of the Port.

Commenting on his retirement the Seattle Times said in part:

"General Jacobs will miss Seattle, as Seattle will miss him. During his years in the Northwest, he has become admired by waterfront labor groups and maritime management organizations; he is known for his impartiality in disputes as he is known for affability in his contact with civilians.

"A champion of close organization, General Jacobs is a firm believer in fixing responsibility. His execution of the belief shows in all the men and material which flow to distant points day in and day out. It is not for mere brevity his headquarters motto is 'Can Do.' . . . When General Jacobs retires he'll be followed by plenty of thoughts and the heartfelt regrets of a grateful citizenry."

General Nichols Named

Maj. Gen. Kenneth D. Nichols, USA, Deputy Director of Guided Missiles within the Office of the Secretary of Defense, has been named Army service member of the Department of Defense Research and Development Board, in addition to his other duties.

General Nichols succeeds Maj. Gen. Ward H. Maris, USA, who will serve as deputy to General Nichols on the Research and Development Board. General Nichols is Chief of Research and Development, Office of the Army Chief of Staff. General Maris is Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, for Research and Development.

Maj. Gen. Rex Beasley, USA, has been serving as deputy to General Maris on the Research and Development Board. General Beasley will now serve as deputy to Archibald S. Alexander, Under Secretary of the Army, who is the Army's civilian member of the Board.

Ft. Leavenworth History

The celebration on 8 May 1952 of the 125th anniversary of Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., makes particularly timely the publication of a volume on "The History of Ft. Leavenworth from 1937 to 1951" by Col. Orville Z. Tyler, Jr., Inf., an instructor at the Command and General Staff College.

Colonel Tyler's book brings up to date the original history published by Col. Elvid Hunt in 1927 and revised by Capt. Walter E. Lorence in 1937.

Copies of the new history are available at the Book Department of Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth.

Commands Dental Lab

Col. Dean S. Beiter has assumed command of the Third Army Central Dental Laboratory at Ft. McPherson, Ga. He recently returned from duty in EUROM.

Heads New Eng. Division

Brig. Gen. Orville E. Walsh, USA, North Pacific Division Engineer at Portland, Ore., since July 1949, has been selected to head the newly-created Mediterranean Division, with headquarters at Casablanca, French Morocco.

General Walsh has been directing the extensive construction program in Alaska and the Pacific Northwest. His successor in the North Pacific Division has not been named.

Name S.G.O. Provost

Lt. Col. Fred G. Steiner, MPC, has been assigned to the Office of the Army Surgeon General as Provost Marshal in accordance with the recently announced Department of the Army policy that a Provost Marshal be detailed to the staff of each chief of a technical service.

It looks like a "POWER YEAR"

New Horsepower—new Brake Power —and new Power Steering blossom on Buick's ROADMASTER for 1952

MAYBE you've heard—horsepower has hit a new high on the ROADMASTER.

Brake power has done the same.

But today, we'd like to concentrate on the third member of the power trio—and that's Buick's own version of Power Steering, now available on ROADMASTERS at moderate extra cost.

What is this Power Steering like? It's something like a helping hand, something like a "hydraulic slave"—that relieves you of all steering strain, but lets you keep command.

What we mean is this:

Power Steering is handled by a special hydraulic unit—and engineers can design this unit to take over any amount of steering effort—even to a point where the wheel seems to float in your hand.

But in that case, you'd surrender all control to that hydraulic unit—get no steering "feel" from the wheel.

Now suppose you're telling two agile tons of automobile what to do in traffic. We think you'd like to have it know that you're in command.

And—out on the straightaway—we believe that a part of the joy you get from owning a Buick is the sensation of having something alive and eagerly willing beneath your hands.

So we're glad to announce that Buick engineers didn't spoil this thrill. They've kept the fun of driving, and simply eased the effort.

When you're rolling along smooth and straight, it takes almost no effort to keep any Buick on course. It almost steers itself, as every Buick owner knows.

But—when you want to get away from a curb—back into a parking spot—make a turn—Buick's Power Steering comes into action, saves four-fifths of the effort required with ordinary steering. Power Steering does the extra work.

And—in case you wonder what happens if Power Steering gets out of kilter, the answer is nothing. Your Buick steers just as it always has.

That's why we've been saying, "This is Power Steering as it ought to be."

Try it out at your Buick dealer's. We think you'll agree.

Marine Release Dates

Eligibility requirements for Reserve officers and enlisted men who will be released from active duty during March were announced this week by the Marine Corps.

Officers eligible for release are those in priorities one and three who were assigned to extended active duty prior to 1 Nov. 1950, and those in priority two who were assigned to extended active duty prior to 16 Sept. 1950.

Reserve officers who wish to be retained on active duty (in accordance with ALMAR 18) should submit requests not later than 29 Feb., if they fall within either of the following two groups: priority three—assigned to active duty prior to 1 April 1951, or priority four—assigned to active duty prior to 1 Dec. 1950.

Enlisted Reservists, subject to the completion of a minimum of 12 months' service during their current tour of extended active duty, who will be released during March are:

1—Those in priority one who were assigned to active duty prior to 1 April 1951.

2—Those in priority two, who were assigned to active duty prior to 1 Sept. 1950.

Marine Headquarters explained that an extension above this release period is authorized for personnel in combat committed units "for reasons of urgent military necessity provided all eligible are transferred, prior to the end of the period in which due for release, from such units to appropriate casual or ships detachments, or similar unit for subsequent transportation to the Continental U. S."

First Certification

Comdr. George M. Lynch, MC, USN, Proctologist at the Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif., recently became the first certified Proctologist in the Naval Medical Corps. A graduate of the Creighton University School of Medicine in Omaha, Nebr., he joined the Navy on 1 Sept., 1942.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Capt. Silliphant to AFIP

Capt. William M. Silliphant, MC, USN, has been assigned recently as the Navy's Deputy Director of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington. His most recent post was Executive Officer of the Navy Medical School at Bethesda, Md. Among his other assignments, Captain Silliphant has been Director of Laboratories and head of the Department of Pathology at the Navy Medical School.

Captain Silliphant is a Diplomate of the American Board of Pathology, a Fellow of the American College of Physicians and a Fellow of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists. He acquired his A.B. degree from the University of Southern California, and his M.D. from the Leland Stanford Medical School at San Francisco.

Awarded DFC

Lt. (JG) Richard O. Rudd, USN, has been presented the Distinguished Flying Cross by Comdr. John D. Stevens, USN, Commanding Officer of the Naval Air Facility, Annapolis, Md.

The medal was awarded on behalf of the President "for extraordinary achievement in aerial flights as a member of a Patrol Plane in Patrol Squadron FORTY TWO," against hostile North Korean forces during the period 21 Aug. 1950 to 2 Feb., 1951.

Navy Ration Allowance

The Navy monetary ration allowance now in effect is $1.36 for all ships and stations within or outside the continental United States at which the average number of men subsisted daily is 149 or less.

Ships and stations within or outside the continental U. S., where the average number subsisted is 150 or more, will receive a money ration allowance of $1.19.

There has been no change in the rate of cash sale of meals.

Quantico Drops Colleges

A new head football coach has been named to guide the 1952 Quantico Marines grid team, and three of five college teams which the Marines played last season have been dropped from their new schedule.

Maj. Charley Walker, former Wabash College star, has been appointed to coach the Leathernecks, succeeding Coach Bill Justice who has been relieved from active service.

At the same time, the 1952 schedule was released. Dropped from last year's roster are the University of Dayton, St. Bonaventure College and John Carroll University. The Marine squad will continue to play two 1951 college opponents (Xavier and Holy Cross) and Fordham has been added to the new schedule.

In addition, Quantico will play six service teams, including the Cherry Point, Camp Lejeune and Parris Island Marines. Bolling Air Force Base and Fort Jackson are retained from last year's schedule, and Fort Eustis and Fort Belvoir added.

The complete schedule follows:

September

13 At Bolling AFB.
21 At Xavier U.
27 Cherry Point.

October

4 At Parris Island.
11 At Ft. Eustis.
18 At Fordham.
25 Open Date.

November

1 Camp Lejeune.
8 At Ft. Jackson.
16 At Holy Cross.
22 Ft. Belvoir.

3d Marine Div. Assn.

The Third Marine Division Association, comprised of Leatherneck veterans and men on active duty, has launched a drive to increase its membership. Lt. Gen. G. B. Erskine, USMC, temporary association president, and commanding general, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, has announced.

Although the association came into being at Camp Joseph H. Pendleton in 1949, with active duty personnel as temporary officers, troop movements incident to the Korean conflict prevented its permanent establishment, General Erskine said.

The association's immediate goal is to achieve sufficient membership to warrant a national reunion, at which time it will become a permanent organization.

Membership is open to honorably discharged veterans and men on active duty, who served with the famed Marine division between its initial activation and a date to be announced. Membership fee is one dollar per year.

Navy High Altitude Tests

The Navy this week announced a new high altitude aircraft interceptor testing program wherein the Navy's latest and fastest planes will climb to altitudes ranging upward from 25,000 feet to test newly developed armament systems.

One problem to be tackled under the program is the determination of how well electronic computers, gun laying and firing mechanisms work in conjunction with the machine guns and rockets as a completed system at high speeds and altitudes. The tests will also be used to determine which system will work the most effectively on each of the aircraft under test.

Comdr. Otho E. McCrackin is in charge of the Navy test unit which will be based at the Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Sanford, Fla. The tests will be conducted at the Air Force Missile Test Range which extends from Cape Canaveral, Fla., through the Grand Bahamas Islands.

According to Commander McCrackin, the Navy program has been made possible by Air Force cooperation in providing range personnel and equipment.

The Navy will use aerial tows and radio controlled drones as targets during the tests, which are scheduled to continue through 1952.

USMC 'Copter Technique

The newest combat use of Marine helicopters was unveiled at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Calif., yesterday 22 Feb.

The event occurred during the course of the largest joint Navy-Marine Corps training maneuver held on the West Coast since 1949.

In connection with the assault on the beaches at Camp Pendleton, the 'copters executed a "vertical envelopment."

This newly developed technique, involving the ferrying of combat troops from an aircraft carrier at sea to a point beyond the enemy beach defenses, received its first large scale test yesterday.

In the opinion of its Marine proponents, the new concept will add an important page to the amphibious warfare manuals.

Ships of the Fleet

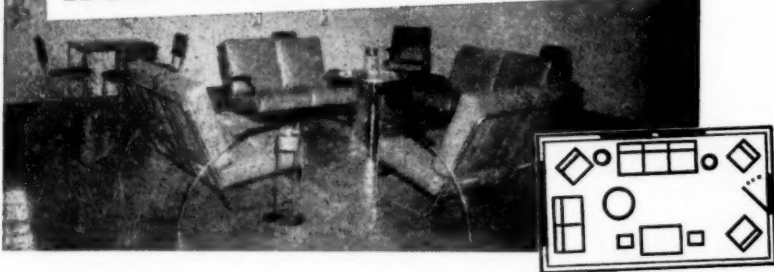

USS Quapaw—fleet tug, under the command of Lt. F. M. Christian, has returned to Pearl Harbor after a routine trip to the Philippines. The Quapaw has been in the Pacific area since 18 Dec. 1950, and during the period 7 July to 14 Aug. 1951, operated with the UN Blockading and Escort Force in the Wonsan, Korea, area.

Destroyer Division 91—the USS De Haven, USS Mansfield, USS Collett, and the USS Lyman K. Swenson arrived on 17 Feb. in San Diego, following seven months with the U. S. Seventh Fleet off Korea.

USS Elkhorn—gasoline oiler, under the command of Lt. C. E. Boudreau, has returned to Pearl Harbor after operating in the Western Pacific and forward area for the past seven months.

Television joins with the microscope in a major scientific advance, pioneered at the David Sarnoff Research Center of RCA, Princeton, N. J.

Microbes star on Television in war against disease!

Until recently, scientists found it difficult to keep microbes alive for study—at high magnification—in light microscopes. Dyes, used to make them visible, killed some. Others were destroyed by the intense light.

RCA scientists have solved this problem by making television a working partner of the microscope. "Eye" of their new system is a tiny industrial television camera built around RCA's sensitive vidicon tube. No intense light is needed, since this electron tube "sees" at low light levels. And by making the tube sensitive to the red or violet bands of the spectrum, dyes and stains are eliminated.

With RCA's new system, research men can now watch living germs or cells—immensely magnified—on the screen of a TV set. Many are able to watch at a time. Students can be more easily trained. And science learns more about disease by watching live organisms.

How RCA Research benefits you:

Improving the microscope by teaming it with television is an example of the many paths explored by RCA Research. You benefit directly by better performance from any instrument or service trade-marked RCA or RCA Victor.

Reserve Survey Data

The Air Force has conducted a survey among Reserve Forces personnel recalled since Korea. Here are some of the results obtained in this study.

About 67 per cent of the officers and 52 per cent of the airmen report that they used their previous military experience and training "all, most or about half the time," in their present assignment.

About 65 per cent of the officers would accept a Regular Commission; 50 per cent stipulated a grade requirement, but 15 per cent said they would take a Regular appointment in any grade.

Of the recalls since Korea, 81 per cent of the officers and 33 per cent of the airmen had some college training.

The average age officer was 30 and airmen, 25.

Among the officers, 78 per cent were married with an average of 2.5 dependents and 52.5 per cent of the airmen were married with an average of 2.2 dependents.

AF Gives O.K. for Extension

The Air Force has authorized the Commander of U. S. Air Forces Europe to authorize up to 90 days extension of tours for personnel who have adopted children while overseas and who need additional time to secure entry visas for the children into the United States.

Extensions for more than 90 days must be approved by USAF Headquarters.

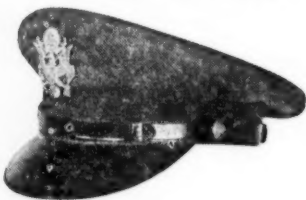

Central ADF Deputy

Col. Paul S. Deems, sr., this week assumed duties as Deputy for Materiel, Central Air Defense Force, Kansas City, Missouri. He had been DC/S Materiel, Hq. Caribbean Air Command. His other assignments in the Caribbean were, Commanding Officer, Beane AFB and Executive Officer, Waller AFB.

New Aero Rating

An aeronautical rating of Aircraft Observer (Electronics Counter-measure) and flying status are now authorized for all officers who have completed course numbers 78880, 78881, or 7888x at Keesler AFB, Miss. or with the Strategic Air Command.

Formerly, officers who had completed such training since World War II were only placed on flying status if they were assigned to the position in a T/O & E vacancy.

To be eligible for the ratings and be placed on flying status, officers should possess a certificate of satisfactory completion of one of the above courses and authentication on the Form 66 of such completion.

An estimated 375 officers will be eligible for rating immediately and those attending the courses will be rated after completing training.

Those rated will be authorized to wear Aircraft Observer wings.

Revise AF Photo Policy

The Air Force has revised its policy with reference to the photographing of classified military equipment revealed in airplane crashes not on government property. Heretofore, the procedure in such cases has been to put a guard around the scene of the crash to prevent the photographing of classified equipment.

As a result of a protest by Mr. James S. Pope, of the Louisville Journal, Chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, it has been determined that military police have no authority to interfere with activities of civilian photographers not on a military reservation. The new regulation provides that within a military installation guards may prevent all civilian photographs. Outside military installations the legal authority of the Air Force is limited to withholding consent for such action.

However, if classified matter is exposed the military authority present will direct that it be removed or covered prior to the taking of photographs. If it cannot be removed or covered, consent to take photographs will not be granted, and photographers will be advised that taking pictures without consent in such cases is a violation of law. If after receiving this information a photographer insists on taking pictures demand will be made for the negatives, and the photographer will be informed that failure to deliver the negatives to the officer or non-commissioned officer will involve commission of a felony, punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or 10 years imprisonment.

Mr. Pope reviewed the new regulation and informed the Air Force of the concurrence of his committee in the procedure adopted.

NGB Info Chief to FEAF

Announcement has been made of the assignment of Maj. Edward R. Kandel, USAF, Chief, Information Office, National Guard Bureau, to FEAF. Major Kandel has been in the Information Office since 1948.

During his tour of duty the National Guard grew from about 200,000 men to a force of approximately 400,000 officers and men in more than 5,000 federally recognized Army and Air units.

The recruiting and public relations program administered by the Information Office was an important factor in the success of the National Guard program. Spending only $300,000 in 1951, the National Guard Public Information Office secured approximately $15,000,000 worth of time and space in various media.

Alaska Hdqs. Commandant

Maj. Joseph V. Wildinger, USAF, arrived in Alaska recently from Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo., to succeed Lt. S. J. Buckalew, jr., as Headquarters Commandant, Alaskan Command at Elmendorf AFB.

Lieutenant Buckalew will be separated and will pursue the duty of Third Territory Assistant District Attorney, with headquarters at Anchorage, Alaska.

Merge SWC with ARDC

The Air Force Special Weapons Command, Kirtland AFB, Albuquerque, N. M., will be made a part of the Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore, Md., and will operate as the Air Force Special Weapons Center.

Announcing the merger, effective 1 April 1952, the Air Force said integration of the commands will facilitate Air Force participation in research and development in the field of atomic energy.

The Special Weapons Center will continue to assist the Atomic Energy Commission in the development-testing of atomic weapons and testing of other special weapons in the field of Air Force interest and responsibility.

It will also continue to provide support to the other Armed Services in the field of nuclear weapons. The Special Weapons Command participated recently in the AEC's test operations at the Nevada test site.

No Personnel Changes

Transfer of jurisdiction of the Special Weapons Command, activated at Kirtland AFB in December, 1949, will be accomplished without change in personnel and existing facilities will be used by the Air Research and Development Command.

Headquarters of the Special Weapons Center will be at Kirtland AFB.

Under the command of Brig. Gen. John S. Mills, USAF, the Special Weapons Command has operated primarily as a test facility for the development-testing of atomic and other special weapons.

Lt. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, USAF, formerly commanding general of the Fifth Air Force in Korea, commands the Air Research and Development Command.

Eighth ARDC Center

With the addition of the Special Weapons Center at Kirtland AFB, the Air Research and Development Command will have eight centers, located throughout the Nation, to carry out details of the Air Force integrated Research and Development program.

The other seven centers are: Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio; Rome Air Development Center, Griffiss AFB, New York; Arnold Engineering Development Center, Tullahoma, Tenn.; Air Force Cambridge Research Center, Mass.; Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.; the Air Force Missile Test Center, Patrick AFB, Cocoa, Fla.; and the Air Force Armament Center, Eglin AFB, Fla.

AF Medical Materiel Billets

The Office of The Air Force Surgeon General recently expanded its military staff dealing with medical materiel, according to an announcement by Brig. Gen. Harold H. Twitchell, USAF (MC), Director of Plans and Hospitalization, OSG.

Maj. John A. Johnson, USAF (MSC) has been assigned as chief for the supply planning section of the supply planning and allowances branch, Medical Materiel Division, and Maj. John J. Waters, USAF (MSC) has become technical advisor to the branch.

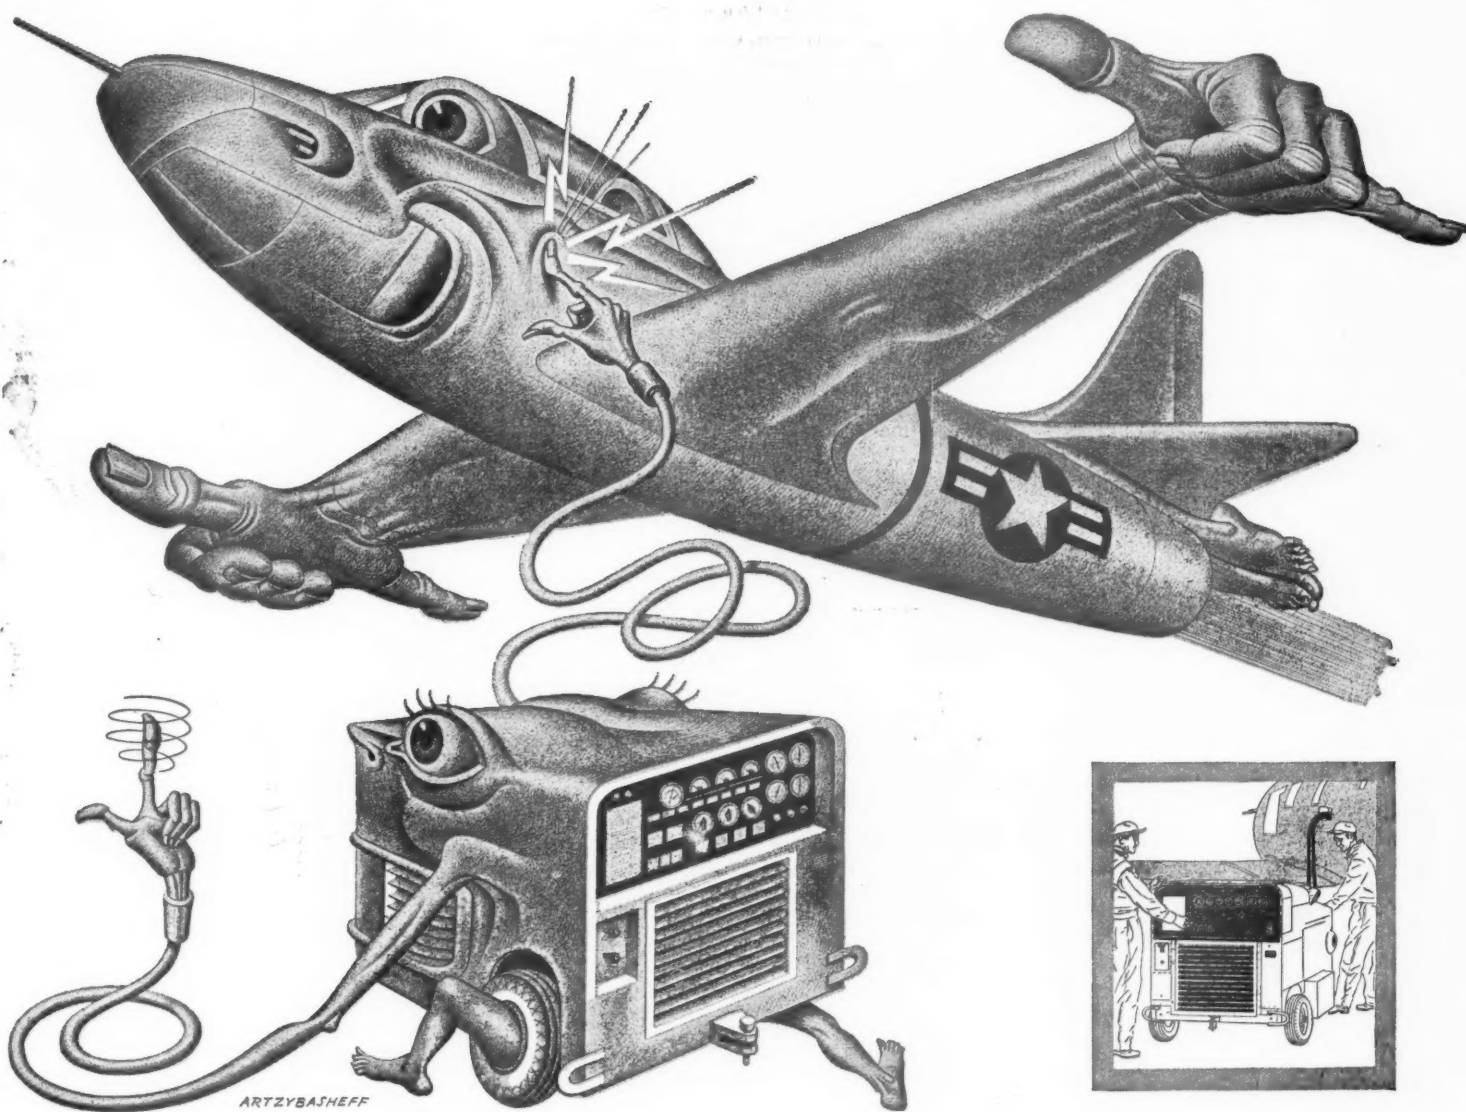

Assuming duties with the requirements and stock control branch in the Medical Materiel Division is Maj. Robert M. Van Horn, USAF (MSC). Capt. William S. Steffen, USAFR (MSC) will work with the overseas section of the distribution branch, Medical Materiel Division.

The new officers have acquired Medical Service experience in widely differing areas. Major Johnson comes from the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas; Major Waters recently returned from Korea; Major Van Horn was with the Far East Air Materiel Command; and Captain Steffen was stationed at Clovis AFB, N. M.

Col. Hopsak Leaves Lackland

Col. Robert C. Hopsak, senior staff officer at Lackland AFB, Tex., since February 1949, will leave this month on an overseas assignment in Europe. He will be succeeded as commanding officer of the 3700th Air Base Group at Lackland by Col. Lloyd Dean, formerly special assistant to Brig. Gen. Wycliffe E. Steele, base commander.

Hot "juice" for cold jets

One generator for any climate, many uses! Air-cooled—to withstand 65° below or 135° above. Portable—to wheel along rows of waiting jets. Light and compact—to tuck in a B-36 for dependable starting anywhere in the world. That's the power package developed by Lycoming and the United States Air Force.

If your need is power—or precision machining, product development or high-volume production—Lycoming offers unusually extensive facilities and well-rounded experience. Long famous for aircraft engines, particularly to the military, Lycoming also meets the most exacting and diverse requirements of America's leading industries.

Whatever your problem, look to Lycoming!

"Today, if a man in the Armed Services dies, be he as high ranking as Admiral Sherman, his widow gets a maximum of $60 per month. If someone covered under old-age and survivors insurance dies, the widow gets $60, with one child she gets $120, and with two children as high as $150."—ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE ROSENBERG.

Opposition to Survivors' Benefits. The Insurance Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has come out in open opposition to the Survivors' Benefits bill designed to provide a pay-as-you-go system for the care of widows and dependents of Service personnel.

The National Chamber, says a press release, regards the proposal as "a direct invasion of private enterprise and a major inroad by the government into the life insurance business."

It is, of course, a legitimate and accepted practice for trade groups to oppose practices which they believe will do harm to their businesses. In this instance, we think they are wrong. We think, too, that the announcement they distributed to the American press was misleading. They make the statement that the Survivors' Benefits bill would provide "a fourth layer of life insurance benefits for families of the Armed Forces." Continuing they say: "Three existing gratuitous plans already provide life insurance protection to them, ranging in amounts as high as $40,000 in the case of a private." Puzzled as to how any such figure could be reached, THE JOURNAL queried the Chamber's office and was told that their insurance experts used as an example a hypothetical case of a private dying and leaving a young widow and three children. How extreme this example is can readily be seen from the fact that official statistics show that less than four-tenths of one per cent of the privates are married and have three or more children. The Chamber's experts included in their total the $10,000 GI insurance, the six months' pay to which his widow would be entitled, plus the value over a lifetime of the monthly payments given to a widow and three children by the Veterans Administration. Now, the six months' pay to the widow of a private would be less than $500 and is intended only to give her some immediate money to help in the readjustment of her family life. Add to that the GI insurance (which is paid over a 10-year period and not in a lump sum) and the lifetime value of the small pension, which varies according to his war service and the cause of his death, and the experts came up with a $40,000 figure, which we are sure will surprise everyone in the Service and lead the public to believe that all widows get that much—which is most assuredly not the case. Furthermore, by specifying that their hypothetical case is a "private," many readers will infer that officers get more, whereas the insurance and pensions are exactly the same for a private and a general, the only difference being in the pay rates.

The Chamber also goes far in referring to the payments as "gratuitous," as if they were unearned gifts. The fact is that the pay scales of the Armed Services take all these benefits into account, so that their cash income is lower than it would be if such benefits were not assumed. This fact was further emphasized by the all-civilian Hook Commission whose exhaustive study was the basis for the 1949 Career Compensation Act.

The Survivors' Benefits bill in its present form is most modest. It is designed to cost the government nothing—to be financed entirely by deductions from the pay of the Service personnel themselves. It seems to us that it would be much more just and equitable to increase the government pensions to a point where survivors could exist on them.

Military Housing. There is much to commend the view of Service authorities, as reported to a Senate Committee by its staff this week, that public owned quarters on Service reservations is preferable to the current system of depending entirely on privately built and owned housing being rented to Service personnel. The Committee was told the military believes that public quarters would be more economical in the long run and better for security reasons. Certainly, while the current Wherry-Maybank Act housing has filled in a lot of gaps, it has fallen far short of meeting the vast requirements and of keeping

Error in Widows' Pension Figures

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

May I invite your attention to a slight error which appeared in your issue of 9 Feb. 1952. In your editorial entitled, "Living on $42 a Month," you state that "Those who are employed and make more than $1,800 a year ($3,000 if they have dependents) are deprived of their small pensions." The facts of the matter are that under present law the income limitations are $1,000 and $2,500, respectively. The amounts mentioned in your editorial are those recommended in HR 4387 which, I believe, is pending in the Congress.

Your editorial is timely and correctly describes the plight of service widows. More power to you in your consistent efforts in behalf of our personnel, active and retired.

The New Uniform Problem

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

As one of the starving Lieutenants (with four kids) that Lt. Col. Tightwad referred to in his recent letter (2 Feb.) concerning the Army's experimental uniforms, I would like to comment on his opinions.

Colonel Tightwad's attitude represents one of the greatest things that is wrong with our Army today. Why not just issue everyone in the Army two sets of fatigues and let it be the uniform for all occasions. The whole situation can be summed up in the words of an old sergeant who said, "If you look like a bunch of bums you'll act like a bunch of bums."

Isn't the multi-billion-dollar clothing industry in this country proof enough that Americans are conscious of their appearance, especially those young men that we seek to recruit for the Army?

A new uniform is not a magic cure for everything but it will certainly do much to generate some spirit in the ranks. No more conclusive example is needed than the Air Force. Their reputation for sloppiness is a thing of the past. I have yet to see an airman from the neighboring Air Base walking through town with jacket open and hat on the back of his head, which seems to be regulation for the Army. The airmen are neat not just because of fear of discipline but because

Service families out of the sub-standard high-rent shacks many are forced to occupy. If even a modicum of government housing construction had been kept up over the post-war years, there would now be an appreciable relief in these difficult times. Furthermore, the savings in rental allowances would pay for them and result in lower expenditures for the government. Certainly, the resumption of a modest program of government building on military posts seems called for.

Backers of the Hoover Report contend that nurses and doctors "get on the Federal payroll" because it pays better and "keeps the wolf from the door." That hardly explains why there is a continual shortage nor why it sometimes becomes necessary to draft doctors and to hold continuous recruiting drives for nurses. We wonder if these lobbyists against the Services' medical facilities have any other explanations for the miraculous record in the saving of lives among our wounded in Korea.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago

Enemy losses in the naval raids of 31 Jan. against Japanese bases in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands totaled 16 ships and 41 planes. Timing the arrival of each force at its destination perfectly, Vice Adm. Halsey was able to carry out simultaneous and highly destructive attacks on each island.

50 Years Ago

An insidious attempt by enemies of the Navy to abolish our sea defenses by placing on the retired list every officer and enlisted man of the Service comes to light with the favorable report by the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs of S. 65.

85 Years Ago

The Fortification Bill is killed, apparently, in the House. The fact that enormous earthworks, thrown up by six days' labor, will outlast masonry on which years and millions have been lavished, have inclined our legislators to vote money only on some definite scientific system of expenditure.

they have a good looking, dignified uniform and they strive to keep it that way.

A good looking dress uniform can be developed to cost less than the present uniform. It would not pass all the drastic tests the present material will but neither will your civilian suit. It may be a surprise to learn that the neat, green enlisted Marines' uniform costs much less than the dismal OD army uniform. Since special field uniforms are used now it would be an overall savings to adopt a less hardy dress uniform and make it nice looking besides.

We officers with our pinks and greens would suffer financially but why shouldn't the whole Army instead of just the officers have a suitable dress uniform? I don't have money to burn by any means but if a new uniform will improve the Army, I'll accept the expense.

STARVING BUT PROUD LIEUTENANT

Waste and Politics

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your editorial "Waste and Politics" and the article "What's Happening to the Military Profession" in the same issue made good reading.

It's a long story, and runs back many years to my knowledge, that the Armed Services and members of Congress have been at odds, and one trying to break the grip of the other. To some Congressmen it's their pride and joy if they can brow-beat the high brass, or put them in a bad light. How much simpler it would be to have the Generals and Admirals come before committees without fear, and be able to lay their cards on the table.

The word "Career" used in relation to Army personnel is only a word, for only God knows what the future holds. On year we have a large force, and then, without any rhyme or reason (and without consulting the Generals or Admirals) it's cut to the bone.

Now if Congress was serious about the defense set-up, they'd take the career personnel into their confidence (first by assuring them they had a career) and plan what was best for the defense of the country. The Russians had a five year plan, and it may not be the best, but at least it could be developed by the people charged with its execution. We operate like an elevator—up and down, sometimes empty, sometimes full.

COLONEL-RES.

SENATOR Robert A. Taft's remark at a Lincoln Day celebration in Seattle, Wash., last week, that he has "no confidence in the judgment of the present Joint Chiefs of Staff," has brought harsh criticism from the press and radio commentators.

Irwin Canham of the American Broadcasting Company observed that a Senatorial strategist doesn't turn out to be much better advised than an armchair strategist at home. He added that internal confusion could destroy the United States.

The Washington Post, in an editorial labeled "Taft, Strategist," deplores the Senator's statement as implying the substitution of a political criterion for military judgment. "Apparently Senator Taft would say to the Joint Chiefs in effect: 'No matter what the facts are and no matter what your experience may indicate, you are out unless you agree with me.'" The Post states that it would not attempt to compare Taft with Hitler "but this was precisely the formula used by the late German dictator. It is a formula for disaster."

Henry Mustin, on the ABC network, reported that Senator Wayne Morse, (R-Oreg.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, felt it was a great public disservice to make statements which shake confidence in our military men.

"NOW, HERE'S A GENERAL I HAVE CONFIDENCE IN"

Columnist Lowell Mellett also lambasted the Senator. He said Taft would involve the country in a much bigger war than the one he likes to call the "Truman War" and that the Senator has given the country a preview of things to come in case he realizes his presidential ambitions.

The Washington Evening Star declared that the Senator's remarks merely "illustrate the point that military strategy cannot be formulated in political speeches." Said the Star: "Even when the fullest allowance is made . . . the strategic plan which the Ohio Senator unveiled in Seattle is a bit on the startling side."

Taft's suggestion to arm the Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa and let them invade China, was countered by Elmer Davis, ABC commentator, who remarked that Chiang's forces couldn't cross to the mainland without American transports and American air and naval support. He said it appears Senator Taft wants a truce in Korea only to transfer the war to Southern China.

Korean Armistice Seems Closer

KOREAN truce negotiations this week moved a step closer to an armistice, with the acceptance by the Allies of a Red proposal to recommend a high-level peace conference, within 90 days after agreement on an armistice, for the purpose of considering "withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea, the peaceful settlement of the Korean question, etc." In agreeing to the Communist proposal Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, USN, chief United Nations representative, said that he assumed "foreign forces" meant non-Korean forces. He also stipulated that the recommendations for a peace conference be made to the United Nations, as well as to the Republic of Korea. The admiral wanted it clearly understood that the Allies did not construe the term "etc." to relate to matters outside of Korea.

At the suggestion of the Communists the recommendation was turned over to a staff committee for incorporation in a proposed draft of an armistice agreement. Admiral Joy at first objected to this procedure, but North Korean General Nam Il said a meeting of staff officers was necessary to write a preamble, and "for proper wording and insertion in the armistice agreement." The admiral then consented, provided that the staff officers would not be empowered to make any substantive change or addition to the draft recommendation.

WHILE AGREEMENT on this item moves the truce conference farther along on its tedious journey toward a cease-fire goal there remain several major obstacles to be surmounted. They include the diametrically opposed views on the Allied proposal for voluntary, rather than compulsory repatriation of prisoners of war and civilian internees, and on the insistence of the Reds on their right to rebuild military airfields in North Korea during an armistice. A new complication was added this week by an abrupt proposal by the Reds that Russia be named as one of six neutral powers to supervise the armistice. The suggestion was immediately rejected by the Allies, and the Communists intimated that this rejection might jeopardize an early truce agreement.

Under an arrangement reached some weeks ago each side was to name three countries from among those not participating in the war to make behind-the-lines inspections to assure compliance with armistice terms. The United Nations designated Sweden, Norway and Switzerland, and this week the Reds proposed Poland, Czechoslovakia and Russia. The Allies accepted Poland and Czechoslovakia, but declared Russia unacceptable. The Reds expressed surprise at the Allied action, and indicated that they would continue to insist on Russian participation in truce supervision. Since Russia trained and equipped the North Korean army that started the war, and is continuing to supply the Communist armies in Korea with military equipment, including jet aircraft, some of which are manned by Russian-speaking jet pilots, the Allies regard the Soviet Union as somewhat less than neutral.

Despite remaining formidable obstructions to peace in Korea, observers regard present prospects for success as much more favorable than at any time in recent months. If the Reds are sincere in their desire to end hostilities there is considerable ground for belief that remaining controversial points may be compromised. This optimism was reflected this week in a decline in quotations of war stocks on the New York market, apparently as a result of a belief that a cease-fire in Korea would so lessen international tension as to make immediate rearmament at home and abroad somewhat less urgent.

Outlook for Lisbon Conference Brighter

A WEEK ago the prospects of the Lisbon conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council on 20 Feb. appeared extremely dark, owing to irritating actions both by the French and the West Germans with regard to the Saar and to exacting conditions of German membership in "the European defense community" (that being the current euphemism for the proposed European Army). But there was some extremely rapid and skillful work over the weekend by the foreign ministers of the four principal nations involved, and when the conference actually began on Wednesday, it was to find that several of the darkest clouds had been pushed quite out of sight, if not exactly out of mind.

This was a considerable accomplishment, comparable to the numerous notable accomplishments in NATO's behalf which during the past year have been carried out at SHAPE by General Eisenhower and his staff, and elsewhere by some farseeing statesmen of all the powers—some of them in uniform. At London meetings of Secretary of State Acheson, Anthony Eden, M. Schuman, and Chancellor Adenauer, from Saturday to Tuesday, when the seriousness of the situation was for the first time clearly recognized by all participants, it was possible to shave down German demands and allay French fears which a few days earlier had been too big for comfort. In this calmer atmosphere (1) it was recognized that no French government could stand secure unless France was given some token of her own future security; accordingly, Britain and the United States gave assurance of "abiding interest in the integrity of the European defense community," which is as far as either nation's representative could go toward committing his people to protecting France's future—the added value of this very general expression being that it affords comfort to other NATO nations as well as France. (2) The extent of Germany's financial contribution for defense (on which Herr Adenauer had not seen eye to eye with the Three Wise Men) was all but agreed upon and, no doubt, will be settled by the time this dispatch is printed. Certain other contributions to NATO remain to be settled, and this is a real worry. (3) The European Defense Community of six nations will agree to defend each of its members from aggression; beyond this, NATO will agree to defend the EDC collectively. (4) West Germany will be allowed membership in a 4-nation community for handling the much disputed war-crime question. (5) Arms manufacture by any EDC member nation will be controlled by EDC itself. (6) The thorny problem of the Saar is not disposed of, but there is apparently an agreement to take it up at a more opportune time and, meanwhile, to discourage discussion of it; it at least is a gain even in this respect over the dangerous situation of a week ago.

Now these were among the largest and much the most critical problems which lay before the Lisbon conference, and to have them so skillfully solved, even tentatively, before the conference was called to order was an impressive feat. It was an augury of good developments in the other areas of disagreement, even though some of those disagreements (over the Middle East command for example) remain profound. At the Lisbon meeting, Turkey and Greece made their bows, and NATO became an assembly of 14 rather than 12 nations. The temporary working arrangement, whereby Admiral Robert B. Carney (as Gen. Eisenhower's Southern Sector Commander) is given overall direction of the new members' land and air elements, will meet immediate requirements, but it must be thought of as only temporary. When the Suez situation betters (and it is moving in the right direction now) the full set-up of Middle East command can be reconsidered.

An impressive addition to the Strategic Air Command's potentialities in the Middle East is contemplated in the plan for a much enlarged base on Cyprus, that strategically situated island in the northeast Mediterranean, which is protected (Please turn to Page 786)

AN EASING OF THE DANGEROUS SITUATION in Egypt was indicated this week by a rather conciliatory statement by Egyptian Premier Ali Maher Pasha. He said his government was willing to renew negotiations with Great Britain on the basis of the evacuation of the Suez Canal zone by England and unity of Egypt with the Sudan. On its face such a proposal would appear to be no concession at all, but reopened negotiations could provide a means for compromise through a face-saving formula. The British might agree to take their troops out of the canal zone, provided they were replaced by those of a Middle East Command, to include British, French, Turkish and Egyptian troops. The British might also agree that the Sudan be given political autonomy, under the nominal sovereignty of King Farouk of Egypt. It is understood that Anglo-Egyptian negotiations will be resumed immediately.

Some progress was reported this week in the efforts of the International Bank to settle the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute. At first representatives of the World Bank made no headway at all with the intransigent Persian Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, and last week were ready to give up and return to the United States from Teheran. However, the Iranian senate insisted that a further attempt be made to resolve the controversy, and negotiations were reopened with some slight promise of success. The representatives of the bank had proposed that, it operate the British oil properties seized by Iran, while further efforts to effect a permanent settlement were made through direct negotiations with the British. The aging Iranian premier insisted on sole Iranian operation of the industry, despite the fact that his country has been unable to produce or distribute any oil since it seized the properties. However, the cautious report of progress made by the World Bank representatives may indicate some modification of the premier's obstinance.

It was reported this week that the Iranian government had made a deal to dispose of some of the oil now in storage to the Italian-Middle East Oil Company on a barter basis, receiving Italian products in exchange. This arrangement would do little to relieve the desperate financial situation of the government of Iran, which is directly due to the loss of revenue derived from oil royalties previously paid by the British.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES this week adopted a resolution directing the Secretary of State to transmit to the House at the earliest date practicable complete information on any commitments made by the President during his recent talks with Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain, "which might require the shipment of additional members of the Armed Forces of the United States beyond the continental limits of the United States, or involve the United States in armed conflict on foreign soil." The resolution, opposed by administration forces, was adopted by a coalition of Republicans and dissident Democrats. The President promptly denied making any commitments to Great Britain to send American troops anywhere in the world. A similar denial had previously been made by Mr. Churchill in London.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Involuntary Officers Volunteer—Military officials are encouraged by the large number of Involuntary Reserve officers, called to active service after outbreak of hostilities in Korea, who now want to remain on active duty.

It is reported that almost one out of every three Involuntary Reserves officers on duty with the Army has expressed the desire to remain in service. Furthermore, it can be anticipated that if the current pay raise legislation is approved by Congress, many other Reserve officers would agree to continue in active status during the emergency.

The extension of active service of these officers, who have served with such outstanding success since Korea, would be important for two reasons. It would permit the Army to reduce its impending call for additional Reserve officers to replace those completing 17 months of service and it would greatly increase the effectiveness of the officer corps. This is particularly significant, since in fiscal year 1953 the Army will be confronted with a shortage of officers as a result of a 120,000 limitation in the budget.

That is one reason why the progress of the pay bill is being followed so closely by personnel planners. Its passage would have a marked effect on the number of Reserve officers signing up for extended service; future recalls could be cut and over-all efficiency increased. It is pointed out that newly recalled officers must be given refresher training.

Severe criticism was leveled at the Army for calling so many Involuntary Reserve officers to active duty in the first months of the Korean war. Therefore, officials are elated that, after active service, so many of these officers are volunteering for additional duty, even though most have been hard-hit financially since coming on active duty.

UMT Chances Brighter—The Senate Armed Services Committee this week reported favorably by a 12-0 vote legislation which would launch Universal Military Training and which would provide for a mandatory reduction in the strength of the active military forces.

Here is the way this would work. When UMT had trained 300,000 young men and placed them in the Reserve, the Secretary of Defense would be required to reduce the active strength.

For every three trained UMT Reserves, one person would be cut from active duty rolls until the standing strength of the Armed Forces was 2,006,000. The House Armed Services Committee in reporting a UMT bill previously by a vote of 27-7, emphasized the economies to be realized as a result of the program. It is this factor which will be stressed when the measure comes up for action in the House and Senate.

The reports by the two Committees were highly pleasing to Pentagon officials, who have become concerned during recent months by development of considerable opposition to UMT. But it can now be expected that Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee and Chairman Richard Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee will have strengthened support when they lead the floor action on the important measure. Observers have felt that the House would pass the measure, but its fate in the Senate was reported in doubt. Now, with the unanimous action by the Senate committee, passage of a UMT bill is held probable.

Navy Sets Board Dates—Two important developments in the promotions field were announced this week by the Navy. (1) Selection boards will meet in April to recommend inactive Naval Reservists for promotion to lieutenant and lieutenant commander. (2) Navy-wide competitive examinations for advancement to third, second and first class petty officer will be held during July.

In the meantime, a selection board now meeting to name both Regular and active Reserve officers for promotion to lieutenant in the Line and Staff Corps, is expected to complete the first part of its work next week, reporting out about 700 selections.

The first new board to be convened will be on 1 April to select officers for promotion to lieutenant commander, both line and staff corps, and to lieutenant in the staff corps (except Dental Corps). The second board will meet on 15 April to select officers for promotion to lieutenant in the line and Dental Corps.

Promotion zones includes those lieutenants and lieutenants (jg) whose dates of rank in present grade are on or prior to 1 Jan. 1946 and 30 June 1949, respectively.

The two boards will consider male and women officers in the zones who will have reported in compliance with orders for active military service in excess of 30 days with the Regular Navy or in the Naval Reserve Program after 30 June 1951, but prior to 1 March 1952, together with those inactive Reserve Officers who have met the eligibility requirements established in the Naval Reserve Program.

Dates for the petty officer competitive examinations are: 8 July—E-4 (third class petty officer); 15 July—E-5 (second class petty officer); 22 July—E-6 (first class petty officer).

The Navy said that "in the event that movements or operations of certain seagoing, aviation or overseas shore-based units prevents the holding of the examinations on the specific dates, certain deviations from schedule will be authorized." However, the examinations will have to be conducted during July, it was pointed out.

Nominations of candidates for promotion are to be forwarded to reach the appropriate convening authorities by 20 April, the Navy said.

Canadian Chaplains Fund—Members of the Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps (Protestant) have established a fund to provide educational opportunities for children of Corps members who lost their lives or died as a result of active Army service. Nine Protestant chaplains were killed in World War II and their eight children will be among those considered for educational assistance.

Promoted for S-A War Service—A belated promotion has come to a Navy retired captain, commended by Admiral Dewey for outstanding service at Manila during the Spanish-American War. Rear Adm. William R. White, USN-Ret., of New Hope, Pa., was promoted this month from captain to rear admiral when it was discovered that he had been commended for leading a force of 500 men which captured Manila without a casualty. The commendation turned up when some of Admiral Dewey's documents were turned over to the Navy Department.

WMSC Captain to S. F.—Capt. Marion M. Donaldson, WMSC, USA, will complete four years in the Office of the Army Surgeon General on 15 March. After leave at her home in Portland, Ore., Captain Donaldson will be assigned to the food service staff at Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco. She has served in Washington as assistant to Lt. Col. Eleanor L. Mitchell, WMSC, USA, chief of the hospital food service section in the SGO Medical Plans and Operations Division.

Returns to AFIP—After a year of duty in Korea, Col. Edward R. Whitehurst, MSC, USA, recently returned to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, D. C., to begin his second tour of duty there during the past five years. His duties at the Institute will be those of Chief of Administrative Services. While in Korea, Colonel Whitehurst served as Executive Officer of the 10th Station Hospital located at Pusan.

Army Field Forces—The following officers have been assigned to OCAFF, Ft. Monroe, Va.:—Col. Harry W. Sweeting, G-3 Section; Lt. Col. Wayne S. Hume, Medical Section; Donald M. MacWillie, Warren D. Hodges, G-3 Section and Francis S. Kelly, Inspector of Infantry Section.

Lt. Col. Ulrich G. Gibbons, OCAFF, has been assigned as a student at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va. Lt. Col. William J. Himes and Frank K. Britton have been transferred from OCAFF to FECOM.

U. S. Naval Academy—Famed Memorial Hall has recently undergone a redecorating program, bringing its collection of flags, portraits and memorial plaques up to date. John Paul Jones now occupies the honor position to the right of Oliver Hazard Perry's battle flag "Don't Give Up The Ship." To the left of Perry's flag is the portrait of the Navy's first Admiral, David Glasgow Farragut, who gave perhaps the best known of naval commands: "Damn the torpedoes . . . go ahead . . . full speed!"

The redecorating scheme has lightened the Hall considerably, making it more cheerful. At each end of the hall proper is a lounge where Midshipmen may have intimate visits with families and friends. All but a few of the portraits, plaques and busts, which previously decorated the Hall, are now relocated in the two lounges.

Associate Professor Raymond H. Swartz, of the Physical Training Department, will coach the U. S. Olympic Wrestling team. His appointment marks the second time in Olympic history that a professor from the Naval Academy has coached a U. S. Olympic team.

New Officers Join OPMG—Three military police officers, veterans of the Korean war, have recently joined the staff of The Provost Marshal General. They are Lt. Col. William M. Campbell, Lt. Col. William Luk, and Major Bartholomew P. Smith. Colonel Campbell, who is presently Acting Chief of the Personnel Division, OPMG, was formerly the Provost Marshal of the X Corps. Colonel Luk has been assigned in the Training Division, OPMG, as Chief of the Inspections and Reserve Affairs Branch. He served as Assistant Provost Marshal IX Corps from 9 Oct. 1950 to 18 April 1951 and as Provost Marshal 24th Infantry Division from 19 April until 9 December 1951. Major Smith is joining the Plans and Operations Division, Plans Branch of OPMG which is responsible for the preparation, coordination, and processing of matters pertaining to planning for the Military Police Corps. Major Smith, who was an instructor in the General Subjects Department of the Provost Marshal General's School from 1946 to 1950, has recently served in Korea with the Provost Marshal Sections of both the X Corps and Eighth Army.

AF Public Relations Turnabout—Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter has changed his mind about where the Directorate of Public Relations should be placed in the USAF Headquarters organization. Shortly after he became Secretary, Mr. Finletter directed that Public Relations be shifted from his office to the Office of the Chief of Staff. Now, Public Relations, headed by Brig. Gen. Sory Smith, USAF, has been returned to the Office of the Secretary.

Regular Army Integration—The Department of Defense is expected to ask Congress shortly for authority to permit the Army to give Regular appointments to officers in grades up to major. The plan is contingent upon concurrent Congressional approval of an increase in the number of Regular Army officers.

THE JOURNAL of 16 Jan. told that such a plan was under consideration. It is emphasized that the appointments, if allowed by Congress, will be spread out over a considerable length of time and will be made in relatively small groups. The Army is hoping that quick approval will be given on Capitol Hill, for it wants to reward with Regular commissions many Reserve officers who have demonstrated outstanding abilities in the fighting in Korea and who are not now eligible for Regular Army consideration.

Rubberized Pavement Tested—Pavement tests to determine the effect of jet aircraft fuel spillage on experimental rubberized runway sections are being conducted by the Army Corps of Engineers at Hunter AFB, Ga. Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Army Chief of Engineers, said the properties of jet fuel have a disintegrating effect on certain types of runway pavement. Tests are being carried out at the request of the Air Force to determine if rubberized pavement will be more resistant.

Also participating in the test are: The National Rubber Research Bureau, Washington, D. C.; Flintkote Company and the U. S. Rubber Company, New York City.

Marine Doubles On Strings—The U. S. Marine Band Symphony Orchestra will feature an innovation in Washington music circles next Tuesday, 26 Feb., when S/Sgt. John Berkman, flutist, highlights the weekly concert by playing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 and Brahms Violin Concerto. The feat—one-hour-and-eight-minutes of continuous music—showing the versatility of the 22-year-old Marine musician has seldom been attempted.

Sergeant Berkman, who has studied music since he was five years old, is equally proficient on both instruments. He will make his first appearance as soloist with the Marine Band Symphony Orchestra at the Department of Commerce Auditorium, 26 Feb., at 8:30 P.M.

Prior to enlisting in the Marine Band, Sergeant Berkman studied piano with the late Harold Bauer, one of the Victor Record pianists, and graduated from Hartt College of Music. His civilian musical experience includes work as pianist with the Hartford Symphony Orchestra and guest appearances with other symphonic groups in New York and Connecticut. At present he continues his piano studies with Moshe Parnov, Director of Hartt College and conductor of the Hartford Symphony, and commutes weekly to Hartford to study violin with Tossy Spivakovsky, Columbia concert artist.

When calls came for tactical air support in Korea, the day after hostilities started, Douglas-built AD4 Skyraiders were on the job. From their battle stations on U.S. carriers, they flew into combat against North Korean ground troops.

Ready in quantity to meet the immediate need—with versatility to serve as day or night bombers, aircraft early warning, or for anti-submarine work... that's the Skyraider story. Now in production at Douglas is an even more versatile member of the AD series. It's the AD5, which can be modified for use as a 6-place transport, 12-place evacuation ship, photographic plane, litter carrier, long-range bomber, attack bomber, or radar-equipped "eyes of the fleet."

Because it does take both time and money to produce good airplanes, Douglas works far ahead on design and development so when the call to battle stations comes, the planes will be there. Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc.

Finishing School for

GUIDED MISSILES

The Air Force Missile Test Center, used by all our military services as a long-range proving ground, stretches thousands of miles from Florida, out over the Bahamas, into the South Atlantic.

A pilotless bomber roars away from its launching stand, picks up speed, zooms into the blue. Setting its course for a far-off target in the ocean, it rockets over a chain of tiny islands where men and machines check its flight, its behavior, the operation of its guidance and control systems. It's a vital part of our air power of the future—aeronautical research and development laying the foundation for continued U. S. air supremacy!

Operated by the USAF's Air Research and Development Command, the Missile Test Center is geared up to test the wide variety of missiles, rockets and pilotless aircraft vital to modern air power. It reached its full stature with the recent completion of down-range observation stations. And the dramatic B-61 pilotless bomber, the Matador, designed and produced by Martin as part of its diversified missiles program, was the first to use the completed range. THE GLENN L. MARTIN COMPANY, Baltimore 3, Maryland.

Allison again fills a critical need

ONCE again, our Armed Services depend on Allison for jet engines to fill a critical need. Just as Allison engines were standing by for immediate duty in Korea, Allison-powered aircraft were the first to be sent abroad to re-arm the air forces of many European countries.

Our Armed Services have flown more hours in the air with Allison engines—more than 1,300,000—than with all other jet engines combined. It is natural then that they should draw on Allison-powered Lockheed T-33 trainers and Republic F-84 Thunderjets when a new need developed for engines which are available now.

Today, Allison engines are depended upon for a major role in the military planning for the air defense of our country as well as powering trainers and fighters for the air power of nations which are our allies in a mutual pact against aggression.

arbitrary ceilings were in effect.

Meantime, legislation to establish a systematic procedure for advancement of warrant officers—comparable to the Officer Personnel Act of 1947—is slated to reach Capitol Hill momentarily.

However, wise warrant officers are not holding their breaths waiting for the bill. They recall that such a measure was promised for 1 Feb. 1951.

Congress is going to insist, in view of the experience of the warrant officers since passage of the Career Compensation Act, that the Secretary of Defense and the Service secretaries are not given absolute powers to shut off warrant officer promotions.

What is the picture today? Latest figures show that the Army has these approximate numbers in the four warrant officer categories: W-4, 327; W-3, 947; W-2, 2,515; W-1, 6,540. For the Air Force, the 31 Jan. breakdown was as follows: W-4, 146; W-3, 196; W-2, 731; and W-1, 1,447.

The Marine Corps has a total of 978 Warrant officers on active duty, including only 16 W-4's, 347 W-3's, 559 W-2's and 56 W-1's.

A spokesman for the Bureau of Naval Personnel said that its information on warrant officers "is classified."

New Tests At Eniwetok

The Department of Defense and the Atomic Energy Commission have announced preparations for a new series of tests at the Eniwetok Proving Grounds to be carried out by Joint Task Force 132. "Full security restrictions of the Atomic Energy Act apply to preparations for and time of the test," the announcement said.

The Joint Task Force is composed of personnel of the AEC, Army, Navy and Air Force, Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, Deputy Commander, United States Army Forces in the Pacific, is the Commander, of the Joint Task Force, Deputy Commanders are: Dr. Alvin C. Graves, Director of the Test Division for the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Deputy for Scientific Matters; Brig. Gen. William H. Wise, U. S. Air Forces, Deputy for Air; and Capt. James R. Pahl, U. S. N., Deputy for Navy. The Chief of Staff is Brig. Gen. Arthur B. Walk, U. S. A., who commanded ground forces during the 1951 test operations at Eniwetok.

General Clarkson served as Deputy Commander of Joint Task Force 3 during the 1951 Eniwetok tests. He became Commander of Joint Task Force 132 in July 1951.

At Eniwetok, construction, maintenance and improvement of facilities are performed by Holmes and Narver, Los Angeles engineering and construction firm, under a contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

U. S. COAST GUARD

COAST Guard cutters won maritime acclaim this week for their heroic service in rescue operations off the New England coast when two tankers split during a severe storm.

Here are the names of the cutters which participated in the action and the names of the commanding officers and executive officers; as made available by officials at Coast Guard Headquarters.

Eastwind—Capt. Oliver A. Peterson, Capt. William E. Creedon.

McCulloch—Comdr. Theodore F. Knoll, Lt. Comdr. Hersey C. Forehand.

Unimak—Lt. Comdr. James D. Luse, Lt. Comdr. Howard K. Heath.

Yakutat—Comdr. Joseph W. Nabby, Jr., Lt. Scott P. Berryman.

Legare—Lt. Earl G. Hamilton, Boat-

swain William B. Sparrell.

Acusnet—Lt. Comdr. John M. Joseph

was skipper. Either Lt. Alexander

Cameron or Lt. George T. Mahoney, Jr.,

was executive officer during the rescue operation.

Frederick Lee—Lt. Comdr. John Dalin,

Chief Boatswain James B. Burbine.

Ice Patrol

The International Ice Observation and Ice Patrol Services in the North Atlantic Ocean soon will be resumed for the ice season of 1952. The vessels assigned to perform these services this year are the

Acusnet (WAT-167), Androsocoggin

(WPG-68) and Evergreen (WAGL-295).

The Evergreen will commence conducting oceanographic surveys about 1 April 1952.

In addition, there will be assigned two long range aircraft, PB1G type, for ice scouting which will improve the efficiency of the services and provide greater protection to shipping. These ships and planes will base at the U. S. Naval Station,

Argentina, Newfoundland.

The Commander International Ice Patrol

will also have his headquarters at

Argentina and from there will coordinate activities of the assigned units. Ice observation service will be inaugurated by the aircraft at such time as ice conditions make it advisable.

Counter-Intelligence Graduates

Fourteen Coast Guard officers recently were graduated from the Counter Intelligence Corps School, Ft. Holabird, Md. All finished in the first half of the class. These officers have returned to their assigned duty stations in the various districts.

Port Security Training

In Dec. 1950, arrangements were made for establishing Coast Guard Training Detachments at the U. S. Naval Magazine, Port Chicago, Calif., and at the Provost Marshal General's School, Camp Gordon, Ga., for the training of Coast Guard personnel in explosive loading and waterfront patrol duties. Results of this training were excellent, and early in July 1951, the original schedules were extended to provide for replacements and rotation assignments.

However, since the new vessel augmentation program requires concentrated training of available Coast Guard personnel in specific petty officer ratings, it will not be possible to continue the port security training at the same time. The training at Port Chicago therefore will be concluded with the graduation of the class on 8 March 1952, and the training at Camp Gordon will be concluded with the graduation of the enlisted class on 28 March, and the officer class on 4 April, Coast Guard officials reported this week.

Advanced Training

Personnel Circular No. 43-51 is being amended to include all reserve officers on active duty as eligible for advanced and specialized training, provided they meet the basic and educational requirements set forth in the Personnel Circular and execute the obligated service agreement for the required period of time. The time for filing such applications is extended to 29 Feb., 1952 for reserve officers. Reserve personnel on active duty also are eligible for off-duty courses, in accordance with the provisions of Personnel Circular 39-49.

LT. GEN. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the Eighth Air Force in England during the war, came to Washington from Beverly Hills, Calif., with Mrs. Eaker, for the annual reunion of the original staff officers under General Carl Spaatz, who was Eighth Air Force Commander before General Eaker took over, and who with Mrs. Spaatz entertained the guests at dinner Saturday night.

The night before General and Mrs. Eaker were honor guests at a dinner given by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Charles P. Cabell—one of Mrs. Cabell's noted Mexican dinners, a series of which she is giving this winter.

Among the 30 guests who enjoyed enchiladas, tamales and pralines were General and Mrs. Spaatz, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William McKee, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. G. H. Davidson, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Harold Maddux, Col. and Mrs. Herschel Williams and D. C. Commissioner and Mrs. Joseph Donohue, the latter a sister of Mrs. Eaker.

Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, wife of the Chief of Staff, was hostess at a luncheon Thursday welcoming Mrs. Howard Jackson, wife of Colonel Jackson, new commanding officer at Ft. Lesley J. McNair, who with him recently arrived from Boston.

The Army and Navy Country Club will be the scene of a formal dinner dance tonight staged by officers and ladies of the Chemical Corps with Mrs. Robert D. Chapman and Mrs. Charles A. Cain acting as hostesses.

The Washington Chapter of the Daughters of the United States Army will meet for luncheon on Monday, 3 Mar., in the ballroom of the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont Ave., N.W. A business meeting, beginning at 11:00 o'clock, will precede the luncheon. Members are urged to attend the business meeting if possible. Luncheon will be served promptly at 1:00 o'clock.

The speaker will be Col. Richard D. LaGarde, Secretary of the Army Mutual Aid Association, who is well-known for the wonderful help he has been to Army widows. ELLINGTON AFB, TEX. A recent Officers' Club luncheon, followed by the business meeting and semi-annual election of officers, was attended by 76 ladies.

The U-shaped tables presented a pleasing picture with the floral arrangement of gladiolus and stock in pastel shades and the ribbon bedecked gift packages beside the place cards of each of the officers. These gifts with a "Thank You" note were presented from Mrs. F. D. Swindall, outgoing president, to each of the officers who had served with her the past term. The floral piece was won by Mrs. W. S. Sellers.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. F. D. Swindall, and the honorary president, Mrs. William L. Lee, the business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Bobbie Hise. After conclusion of the usual business matters, Mrs. Hise turned the meeting over to the election committee chairman, Mrs. H. O. Waltrip, to proceed with the election of officers.

Elected for the new term of office were Mrs. John C. Burnett, President; Mrs. P. W. Gudgill, Vice Pres.; Mrs. F. D. Hunter, Secretary; Mrs. T. L. Cox, reelected as Treasurer; Mrs. A. M. Adams, Asst. Treasurer, and Mrs. E. J. Moore, Corresponding Secretary.

Welcomed to the club were 18 new members. They were: Mrs. E. F. Perrin of Friendswood; Mrs. J. S. Tolbert, Mrs. T. E. Koch and Mrs. John C. Irving of Pasadena; Mrs. J. T. Brinkley of Seabrook, and Mrs. C. J. Hebert, J. Frederick, M. K. Finley, Bart McKee, R. C. Householder, W. S. Selers, H. E. Cushman, Wm. R. McGinnis, P. A. Ryan, A. G. Bumgarner, F. D. Inderbitzin, L. Freedman and Frank D. Coffee.

FT. LEWIS, WASH. Col. Glen A. Webster, 354th Engineer Combat Group commander, will leave shortly to assume an assignment at San Luis Obispo, Calif. He has been commander of the 354th Engineer Combat Group since 15 Jan. 1951. He assumed command of the unit at Camp Roberts, Calif., and brought it to Ft. Lewis last 21 April.

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, MD. This post's representative in the sixth Winter Olympics scored one of the biggest upsets in Olympic history 16 Feb. when he streaked home in 43.9 seconds to cop second place in speed skating. Pvt. Donald J. McDermott, a basic trainee with Co. E, Ordnance Replacement Training Center at the Proving Ground, captured that place from a field of 42 speed demons from 14 nations participating in the race. His American colleague, Ken Henry, weakened by an attack of influenza, sped to first place victory in the 500-meter race before a crowd of 28,000 at Bissett stadium.

FT. ORD, CALIF. Cupids, hearts and flowers made last week's luncheon meeting of the Officers' Club a gala affair. Valentines were presented to the guests of honor, Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, Sixth Infantry Division commander, and Colonels Charles C. Ege and Joseph R. Martz.

Eight of the tables, beautifully decorated by wives of officers of Ft. Ord units, were judged. The prize, a silvered basket of candy, was awarded to the table decorated by Division Artillery. It had a large, pierced red paper heart, and a flowered spray holding tiny red and white candy hearts. Accepting the prize, Mrs. Louise Sinsel confided that the cost of decorating the table was only 19 cents.

ANNAPOLIS, MD. Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harry W. Hill attended the Navy Relief Society performance of "Shop Around Sly Corner" in Mahan Hall, on the evening of 15 Feb.

Mrs. St. Clair Smith, widow of Admiral Smith, entertained at a tea on 14 Feb. in honor of Mrs. Howard Keppel-Palmer of Baltimore.

Mrs. William Thompson Fuller, wife of Lieutenant Fuller, USN, and her small son have returned to Norfolk after spending a week with her mother and sister, Mrs. Isaac Foote Dorch and Miss Peggy Dorch.

Miss Margaret Sugg of Washington has been visiting Mrs. Nathaniel M. Terry of Prince George St. Miss Sugg, a former resident of Annapolis, made her home with her brother, Comdr. H. A. I. Sugg, USN.

Mrs. William E. Farrell, president of the Naval Academy Women's Club, has announced that Mr. Mark Watson, military correspondent for the Baltimore Sunpapers, will be guest speaker on 4 March at 8:30 P.M. in Mahan Hall. Mr. Watson was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for outstanding reporting during World War II.

BEDFORD, MASS. The first meeting of the Officers' Club of Hanscom Field was held recently and the following officers were elected:

Mrs. Lowell E. Peaster, Honorary President; Mrs. James O. Vann, President; Mrs. Chandler R. Brown, Vice President; Mrs. Raymond Nethers, 2d Vice President; Mrs. Daniel J. Coonan, Secretary; Mrs. Thomas Sundborg, Jr., Treasurer; and Mrs. J. F. O'Marah, Hospitality Chairman.

AUBURN, WASH. Lt. and Mrs. Arthur L. Lenahan, whose marriage took place in Meridian, Miss., on 17 Jan., were honor guests at a reception held at the Auburn General Depot recently, with Col. and Mrs. Charles G. Herman acting as host and hostess.

In the receiving line were Col. Michael A. Quinn, Depot Commander, and Mrs. Quinn and their guests, Col. and Mrs. Harry Wild of Kansas City, Mo., the bride and groom; and Capt. and Mrs. Nicholas T. Zackeo, who departed the following day for New York where Captain Zackeo was to report for his new assignment with First Army Headquarters.

CAMP COOKE, CALIF. The February luncheon of the Officers' Wives Club was attended by more than 100 members and guests. Hostesses for the gala occasion were Mrs. Alexander G. Kirby, Mrs. Thomas Barton, Mrs. Welton L. Simmons, and Mrs. Carl Johnson. The 13th of February marked a red letter day for the Club as the Post Nursery, under its sponsorship, opened its doors. Mrs. Louis Elsen is Chairman.

A tea will be given on 26 February for the new wives on the post, including those of the 44th National Guard Division from Illinois, which is to make Camp Cooke its home. Hostesses will be Mrs. Walter R. Chance, Mrs. Clyde Thornhill and Mrs. Don L. Angle.

BRYAN AFB, TEX. One hundred and twenty-five members of the Officers' Wives Club attended, 7 Feb., the first Spotter's Coffee to be held at the Officers' Club since re-activation of the base 14 Oct., 1951. The Valentine motif was carried out. Mrs. John A. Adams was in charge of the decorations.

Mrs. James C. McGehee, wife of the Commanding Officer; Mrs. Richard N. Ellis, wife of the Executive Officer; and members of the Board of Directors, Mrs. Thomas W. Martin, President; Mrs. Joe N. Simmons, Vice-president; Mrs. Julius H. Almond, Recording Secretary; Mrs. William G. Studebaker, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Griffin L. Chalfant, Treasurer; and Mrs. Edward M.

Fritsch, Assistant Treasurer presided at the coffee service.

The chairman of the Spotter Committee, Mrs. Kay A. Spooner, was hostess for the coffee. Her co-chairmen are Mrs. Albert R. Weaver and Mrs. Paul W. Kaupplia.

Since the organization of the club last August the Bryan group has organized, equipped, and financed the operation of a base nursery. A fifteen week Bowling League was completed in December and trophies were awarded to the winning team. Competition has recently begun in the second league. Lessons in ceramics, art, leathercraft, and golf have been arranged with a large number of members participating. The Talepipe, a monthly newsletter, is prepared by the Publicity Committee. A Thrift Shop is to be opened soon and classes in Civil Defense are being held currently. Gray ladies from the club assisted when the mobile blood unit of the Southeast Texas Blood Center was in Bryan. Assistance has been given to the Base Chaplains through the Chapel Committee, and on 3 Feb., Sunday morning services were sponsored.

SALZBURG, AUSTRIA. Col. Franklin H. Colby, Commanding Officer, 1142nd USAF S/A Sq. was host to the squadron at a squadron party held recently at the Berchtesgaden Hof, Berchtesgaden. Military personnel and DAF Civilians of the squadron attended plus the following distinguished guests: Col. John I. Moore, Commanding Officer of the 7050th AIS Wing, Hqs USAFE, Col. Guillelte.

■ WEST POINT, N. Y. The challenge of understanding leadership on the part of Military Academy graduates was the theme of an address by Mr. Charles P. McCormick, President of McCormick, Inc., of Baltimore, here on 19 Feb. Mr. McCormick addressed the cadets of the First Class, under the sponsorship of the Department of Military Psychology and Leadership.

"Out of the doors of West Point," declared one of the leading American economists, "will come the leadership that can and will protect our country more than any other graduating classes of any other college."

Mr. McCormick stressed "human consideration" in dealing with the youth of America and said that great sacrifice is needed to provide the leadership that is possible for all the graduates to mold the character of American youth.

"Today, training for leadership is a must," continued the outstanding businessman, and prescribed a philosophy of "men ahead of weapons" as a formula for the graduate's leadership.

In discussing his world famed principle of "multiple management," Mr. McCormick said that his company installed the democratic principles of America into business to eliminate the time clock, shorten the work week and reap a crop of executives "far above average."

The way to acquire "fellowship" from other nations, according to the speaker, is to teach them by example, "that we wish to better living conditions" at home and abroad.

One of Mr. McCormick's definitions of a leader was a clear thinker who recognizes straight thinking and the rights of the other man. Tolerance, justice, unselfishness, and a firm set of convictions were other conditions laid out for leaders by Mr. McCormick.

■ PHILADELPHIA, PA. The wives of the officers of the newly organized Signal Corps Supply Agency of Philadelphia met on 14 Feb. for the first time for luncheon at 625 Childs Avenue, Drexel Hill, Pa., the home of Col. W. Preston Corderman, Commanding Officer of the Signal Corps Supply Agency. Mrs. Corderman welcomed the 55 ladies present and spoke of the many activities available to the group. She then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Robert F. Wilson, who was designated as interim chairman pending the formal organization of an Officers' Wives Club, which is expected to take place in May of this year. Other officers designated were Mrs. Brookman R. Painter, Corresponding Secretary and Mrs. Glenn S. Meader, Custodian of the Funds.

Hostesses for the luncheon were the Mesdames Clarence A. Fleming, Rudolf H. Folts, Glenn S. Meader, Anderson D. Meadows, Edward E. Moran, Brookman R. Painter and Robert F. Wilson under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank W. Cayce. Mrs. Fleming was designated to head the hostess group, and Mrs. Thomas A. Bohlinger to be in charge of entertainment for the next meeting to be held on March 13th at Mrs. Corderman's home.

■ FT. RICHARDSON, ALASKA. The newly organized Women's Club held election of officers recently. Mrs. J. M. Hartley, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers. Mrs. Whitely Miller was elected president.

Other officers elected were Mrs. J. W. Jacobson, vice-president; Mrs. J. H. Mahoney, recording secretary; Mrs. W. F. Price, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Emory Safford, treasurer. The members of the executive council include the following: Mrs. J. W. Cunningham, Mrs. C. W. Pence, Mrs. R. C. Snyder, Mrs. W. J. Nichols, Mrs. L. P. Van Court, Mrs. H. A. Smith, Mrs. R. C. Freihube, Jr., Mrs. J. P. Rigg, Mrs. A. R. Moore and Mrs. R. L. Stanley.

■ MURFREESBORO, TENN. The Armor ROTC unit at Middle Tennessee State College held its Second Annual Military Ball on 7 Feb. in the Grand Ballroom of the New Student Union. This was the first social function held in the new building.

Members of the military staff attending were Lt. Col. Robert J. MacLean, PMS&T; 1st Lt. Charles A. Rigler, Asst PMS&T; M/Sgt Andrew A. Burke, Jr, Sergeant Major; Sfc Noah M. Lowery, Supply; and Sgt. Wilbur F. Pinkerton, Motors.

■ NORFOLK, VA. The Officers' Wives Club of the Hampton Roads Port of Embarkation, held their first formal dance Saturday evening, 9 Feb., at the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Clifford Parr was chairman of the dance committee and was assisted by Mrs. Willard Page and Mrs. George Wells. In the receiving line were Colonel and Mrs. Charles R. Currier, Capt. and Mrs. Willard Page and Capt. and Mrs. George Wells.

Hostess Association Offers Varied Help To Officers' Families Arriving in Capital

This is the first in a series of articles on the work of the Armed Forces Hostess' Association—a group of women dedicated to the welfare of the officer's family. Future articles will outline information collected by the Association about overseas bases.

THE "Mr. Anthony" of the military services—to whom many Service wives turn for help—is the Armed Forces Hostess' Association, located in Room 1B877, The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C.

No matter what your problem—whether it involves finding a baby sitter or a special kind of cheese on which your husband dotes—the Hostess group can probably come up with an answer, and usually does.

Less than three years old, the Hostess' Association was started in 1949 by a small group of Service wives to give assistance to the wives of officers transferred into the Washington, D. C., area—to greet them, make them feel at home, and to answer questions about clubs and services available in the Washington area.

Today, the organization includes 26 Hostesses who man the "central" office in the Pentagon, and 400 Assistant Hostesses who work in the outlying neighborhoods of the District. In addition, there are "overseas correspondents" who keep the Association supplied with up-to-the-minute information about housing and services in numerous foreign countries where service wives are likely to find themselves on short notice.

Neighborhood Hostess

In Washington, when an officer's wife comes to town and begins to settle her home, a "Neighborhood Hostess" in her locality calls on her to welcome her to the city and to help her through the first difficult days. She answers questions about the locations of schools, hospitals and churches—as well as the Super-Market—where and how public transportation can be obtained to different places, and countless other queries. If she doesn't have the information at her fingertips, she can call the Pentagon office where files of information are kept on every neighborhood. Or the wife can make the call herself (the number is Liberty 5-6700, extension 73180).

The Pentagon desk is manned daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 to 4, by three volunteer Hostesses—all of the workers are volunteers—and they have only to turn to their catalogue files to answer almost any question. Questions come in not only from new arrivals but from wives who have been on the Washington scene for a long time. Most of the questions revolve around the same problems, but if it happens to be a new, tough one, the Hostess checks around with other members until she finds an answer; this she relays to the anxious wife, and the problem and solution are carefully filed away with the other, older ones, for future use.

The files contain information on such things as automobile service, beauty shops, caterers, camps and cottages, doctors, dentists, eating places, baby sitters, and entertainment, to name only a few.

How do the Hostesses know who is coming to Washington and when? Official sources within the Pentagon keep them informed about arrivals in the Washington area. When an officer reports for duty his name is sent down to the Association, the Hostesses contact him, find out where he and his dependents are going to live, refer to a pin-cluttered map on the wall (each pin indicates the location of a Neighborhood Hostess), and advise the Hostess nearest the new family to call upon the wife and offer neighborly assistance.

Foreign Correspondents

In recent months, the Association has branched out into the foreign field. Correspondents at numerous overseas locations (about 45 in all) keep the Hostesses informed about living conditions at their location. When an officer receives orders to Nagoya or French Morocco and his wife plans to accompany him, the Association can give her advance information about the station, what she will need in the way of clothing, what she can buy after she gets there, and what kind of supplies she should take along.

Much of this information is furnished in pamphlets about overseas bases, which are put out by the Services and the State Department, but the Hostess Association has found through experience that the wife doesn't normally receive such publications until she gets her sailing orders. Then it's usually too late to permit her to accomplish everything which she needs to do. The Association can give her much of the information at an earlier date (including some personal hints not to be found in the pamphlets) and thereby help her to get numerous chores out of the way before the sailing orders are received.

In a series of short articles, THE JOURNAL will attempt to outline some of the information which the Hostess Association has in its files on various overseas bases.

Volunteers Sought

In the meantime, if you are in the Washington area, and would like to volunteer for Neighborhood Hostess work, call the Pentagon office (LI-5-6700, extension 73180). There are no dues in the organization, it will cost you nothing but a little time, and the group will be happy to have your help.

Lisbon Seems Brighter

from ground force invasion by the watery spaces surrounding the island, yet close enough to both Turkey and Syria to be extremely useful in operations over the mainland. The project has long been contemplated. Formal discussion of it will await the hearings on that subject before the Congressional appropriations subcommittees, but plenty of informal discussion was launched this week by some premature remarks in Cyprus itself, where survey parties are at work.

The planned location will be the old RAF base near Tymbou, southeast of the Cypriot capital of Nicosia. It needs a great deal of development, including new hangars and shops, extension of the landing strips to an 8,000-foot minimum, and laying of a gasoline pipe-line to the southern port of Larnaca. Probable cost is $15,000,000, which does not include the cost of new housing, where necessary, for some 3,000 Americans. There are political complications; Cypriots have for some time been agitating separation from British control and a union with Greece, and there undoubtedly will be further agitation (by the Communists, chiefly) against so considerable an "invasion" by Americans. Yet, whether Britain or Greece exercise governmental control, the American SAC activities will be welcomed by the defense establishments of both NATO nations, and the installation itself will constitute a very important element in SAC planning. Our existing air bases in that general area are limited. Dhahran in Saudi Arabia and Wheelus in Tripoli are both MATS installations rather than military fields, and neither possesses the 8,000-foot landing strip, which is desired for B-36 planes. We have landing rights, to be sure, at Farouk (near Cairo) and at numerous other commercial fields, but our firm military bases sited for SAC operation are few. Even the five in French Morocco (Ben Guerir, Boulhaut, El Djema Sahin, Nouasseur, Sidi Slimane) far to the west are not yet in operation; the Italian peninsula affords useful sites, not too well protected.

Old hands of the Eighth Air Force must have stirred uneasily over dispatches reporting intensive work by Russian authorities at Peenemunde, on the Baltic, where the Nazis developed their "V" weapons a decade ago. Russian occupying forces in late 1945 wrecked the old installations as only a Muscovite can wreck things, then rebuilt them, then demolished them, and then again rebuilt them. Moscow is an odd place. In the past six months fresh supplies in quantity, including idle jet planes, have been hauled by land and sea within the ten-mile patrols which bar all visitors. Presumption is that more experiment in long-range missiles is under way; a tremendous explosion lately took place within the zone, but its cause is still a mystery.

Report on Housing

usually clean, was not fit to be defined as public quarters in the sense that one would expect in lieu of commutation allowance. (The Services insist you get commutation in lieu of public quarters.) In some of these projects the Service would, in effect be deducting up to $105 for an accommodation that was worth no more than $35. While good logic was offered in support of this practice, it seems that the National Defense Department should reconsider this practice, and if it is continued, at least permit a reasonably large maintenance and repair fund to be set aside specifically for improvements in such projects.

Maximum for Allowances

"There is general complaint," the report states, "on the part of the builders and the FHA officials that the military want more housing than the average rental allowance permits. On the other hand, the military do not want minimum housing and low rentals but the maximum housing consistent with the commutation allowances. With construction costs as high as they are, it is difficult in many cases to enable the builder to operate at a fair margin and at the same time satisfy the military consumer. One solution that has been worked out temporarily at the moment is, in effect, to charge the officers more for their housing than the enlisted men, to give the higher ranks less housing than their commutation allowance permits, and to average out costs and rentals in other ways. Another has been to allow the services to provide up to $1,000 for land purchase and utilities where the houses cannot be built within the mortgage ceilings for development and site work. The sponsor is not allowed any return on such improvements.

"One suggestion that may be helpful would be to permit a certain percentage of the homes up to 5% to have mortgage ceilings up to $12,000 instead of $9,000 as at present."

Deny EM Slighted

"There were some rumors which we find to be completely unwarranted that the Wherry Housing was only being made available to officers. It was manifest that the enlisted personnel were treated with complete fairness and equality, and, if anything, with some preference. These rumors may have arisen from the fact that in some cases the housing made available to enlisted personnel was slow in being rented. In such cases where there was a shortage of houses for officers they were permitted to occupy the enlisted personnel housing until there was a demand for these units by the enlisted personnel. In most cases we found that the enlisted personnel newly arrived at the base sought these units and the original proportions were reestablished."

Obituaries

Mrs. Charles E. Coates

Funeral services were held on 22 Jan. at Ft. Myer Chapel, Va., for Mrs. Charles E. Coates, wife of Colonel Coates, USA-Ret., who died suddenly 17 Jan., at her home in Clearwater, Fla. Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Coates was born in St. Louis, the daughter of the late Col. and Mrs. Hoel S. Bishop.

She was a charter member of the Society of the Daughters of the United States Army. A brother, Col. H. S. Bishop, Jr., an assistant to the District Engineer Commissioner from 1935 to 1939, is stationed at the Pentagon and lives at Ft. McNair.

Survivors are her husband; four daughters, Mrs. R. W. Moore of Waco, Tex., Mrs. Philip H. Donahue of Ft. Bliss, Tex., and Blanche and Sheila Coates of Clearwater; two sons, Lt. Col. E. M. Coates of New Haven, Conn., and Col. Charles E. Coates, Jr., of Ft. Knox, Ky.; two brothers, Colonel Bishop of Ft. McNair, and John C. Bishop of Chippewa Falls, Wis.; a sister, Mrs. J. E. McCammon of Bradenton, Fla., and seven grandchildren.

Two other sons were killed in service: Lt. Howell B. Coates in World War II, and Lt. Willard H. Coates in Korea in 1950.

Brig. Gen. Wm. W. Ashurst, USMC-Ret.

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. William W. Ashurst, USMC-Ret., who died on 18 Feb., at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., were conducted on 21 Feb., in the Ft. Myer Chapel, preceding burial at Arlington National Cemetery.

Born 30 Oct. 1893 at Green Ridge, Mo., he was commissioned in the Marine Corps in May 1917, winning the Silver Star Medal during the World War I fighting in France. General Ashurst, whose 35-year career in the Corps encompassed two World Wars and tours in Puerto Rico, France and China, retired from active service in Dec. 1946, and has since resided at Beaufort, S. C. He had been interned by the Japanese in Dec. 1941, in China, where he had commanded the American Embassy Guard at Peking.

General Ashurst figured prominently in the news last month in connection with the search for the bones of the pre-historic Peking man. He reported that the Japanese captured the bones in China in 1941, along with a detachment of Marines who were guarding them. The whereabouts of the 500,000-year-old bones is still a mystery.

General Ashurst is survived by a nephew, Robert C. Ashurst of 806 Grand Ave., Fulton, Mo.

Col. Samuel J. Heidner, USA-Ret.

Col. Samuel J. Heidner, USA-Ret., whose home has been at 756 Armada Terrace, San Diego, Calif., since his retirement in 1945, died 14 Feb. after an illness of several months at the age of nearly 62, having served actively for 36 years.

He was a U. S. Military Academy graduate of 1913 and also was graduated from the Infantry School, the Command and General Staff School, the Army War College, and the Ecole de Guerre. He obtained his Ph.D. at Georgetown University.

He is survived by his widow, Jane D. Heidner; three brothers, and two sisters: Andrew L. Heidner of Norco, Calif.; Chas. H. Heidner of Los Angeles; Arnold S. Heidner of Alameda, Calif.; Mrs. Charles E. Potter of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Charles Bowker of Highland Park, Mich.

Maj. Gen. Ralph H. Van Deman, USA-Ret.

The following tribute has been written by Col. N. W. Armstrong, AGC, NGC-Ret.:

"The recent death of Maj. Gen. Ralph H. Van Deman, USA-Ret., closed the career of a great Army officer.

"Scholar, physician, genius and outstanding and brilliant officer, General Van Deman wore the uniform for more than 60 years as an active and retired officer. As a young man he was commissioned second lieutenant of Infantry a few years after he had won his A.B. at Harvard. While a young officer, he continued his studies and was awarded his degree as a Doctor of Medicine from Miami University Medical School in 1893. For nine years he was a member of the Army General Staff serving two details, 1906-1910 and from 1915 to 1920.

"The late and much publicized Major Andrew Rowan, who carried the Message to Garcia and General Van Deman, comprised the G-2 Section of the Army when the Spanish-American War broke out. Rowan was selected for the mission that won him fame.

"At the outbreak of World War I, General Van Deman, then a Colonel (temp) was head of the G-2 Section of the Army. From 1923 to 1925 General Van Deman served in the Militia Bureau. He was an instructor on duty with the 159th Infantry, California National Guard, where he endeared himself to every member of the regiment. Two years later he was selected for appointment as a Brigadier General, a promotion that was heralded as well earned by his many followers and friends in the service. When General Frank McCoy was selected for promotion to Major General in 1929 he graciously stated that he would gladly forego promotion in favor of his friend and deserving officer, Brigadier General Van Deman, who was elevated to the two-star rank. Later General McCoy was promoted to Major General.

"General Van Deman retired for age in September 1929. He located at San Diego, Calif., where he was active and prominent in civic and defense affairs. For outstanding service to his country in World War I General Van Deman was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. He was buried in the National Cemetery at Ft. Rosecrans, Calif., near the home he enjoyed for many years since retirement."

Mrs. Blanche Cornelia Whitcomb

Mrs. Blanche Cornelia Whitcomb, widow of Col. Clement C. Whitcomb, MC, USA-Ret., died at the age of 82 at St. Petersburg, Fla., on 16 Feb. after an illness of only eight days.

Mrs. Whitcomb had lived in St. Petersburg for 21 years. She was born in Etna, Me., 4 July 1869, the daughter of Benjamin F. and Cornelia Harmon Shaw.

Mrs. Whitcomb was a member of the Washington, D. C., Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and a member of the St. Petersburg Army and Navy Club.

She is survived by one son, Col. John C. Whitcomb, USA, now on duty in Lima, Peru; his wife, Mrs. Salome Whitcomb; a grandson, John C. Whitcomb, Jr., Assistant Professor of Theology at Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind., and a sister, Mrs. Stillman Sylvester of Augusta, Me.

Funeral services were held in St. Petersburg, interment was at Arlington National Cemetery, Washington.

Institute of Pathology

Navy, Air Force, Veterans Administration, Public Health and civilian medical agencies throughout the world send surgical and autopsy materials to the department's laboratories.

Among the earliest functions of the Institute was the Photography Department which, in the postwar period, has expanded to become the Medical Illustration Service. This service was recently reorganized and integrated with the training film activities of the Office of the Surgeon General. Under its jurisdiction come all aspects of medical art, design and illustration handled by the Institute. The Illustration Service is also responsible for the development, construction and maintenance of all Medical Service exhibits including those to be installed in the Medical Museum. Plans are underway for training of students in clinical photography through the Illustration Service. Supervision of clinical photographic activities in all armed forces hospitals is another responsibility of the Medical Illustration Service. For example, a central file of illustrative material is maintained, which is available to all medical personnel of the Federal services, medical schools, medical organizations and civilian practitioners.

Study Exhibits

Arrangements are currently being made for the Medical Museum to ultimately provide the profession with comprehensive study exhibits illustrating all phases of disease. These will include history, diagnosis, pathology, etiology, prevention, and treatment of tumors and other diseases. Exhibits for the public are prepared as educational activities with displays being constantly changed to conform with changing interests.

One of the Institute's more important roles, of which it is quite proud, is the part it plays in providing specialized training for qualified medical, dental and veterinary personnel. It is accredited for one year advanced training in preparation for the American Boards of Pathology, Dermatology, Syphilology and Oral Pathology. Procedures have been initiated to secure similar credit from boards of other medical specialties. The Institute has prepared numerous sets of microscopic slides and related texts which may be borrowed by students who cannot conveniently come to Washington. These are procured on loan through the American Registry of Pathology and cover practically every field of medicine.

Varied Training

Training within the Institute itself is conducted in a variety of ways. Medical officers of the Army, Navy, and Air Force and the Veterans Administration may apply for training. Officers of the Medical and Dental Reserve Corps may also be ordered to active duty for such training purposes. Research and training fellowships for civilians have been established by several medical schools, the American Dental Association and the American Veterinary Medical Association.

The Armed Forces Institute of Pathology today represents an unlimited horizon for the study of diseases and tumors and their correlation with clinical observations. Unique in its field, the Institute has become a national institution for the diagnosis, collection and preservation of specimens and records relating to all disease. With the advent of its new building, soon to be constructed on the grounds at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, greatly expanded research facilities will make it possible to increase the Institute's services to military and civilian medicine alike.

Attack Medical Services

15,750 duly registered nurses were on the Federal payroll as of December 1950.

"Many nurses get on Federal payrolls because, as one frankly told me, 'We work less, are paid more, and our patients are marriageable men. It's no fun nursing women.' This is only one aspect of the complicated problem which must be solved."

This intelligence will come as somewhat of a surprise to the hundreds of Army, Navy and Air Force nurses who have rendered such tireless and distinguished service in Korea and at understaffed military installations throughout the world.

According to Dr. Scolten, "we sure have too many specialists and too many doctors who get on a Federal payroll because it is the easiest way to keep the wolf from the door. It is an easier way than giving five to ten years of real struggle to building up a paying private practice."

The attack on the civil functions of the Corps of Engineers was made by Senator Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), who said:

"There is every logical reason why the civil functions of the Army Engineers should be combined with those of the Bureau of Reclamation into a new agency of Water Development Service, located within the Department of the Interior. This was the recommendation of the Hoover Committee and it seems to me to be sound from every point of view. For we need to remember that the civil functions of the Engineers do not prepare them effectively for war-time duties and their employment on rivers and harbors work came purely as an historical accident in that this work was started a century and a quarter ago when there were no other engineers in the country. The combat effectiveness of our forces would be increased by returning to military duties the some 200 officers of the Engineer Corps now engaged in so-called civil functions."

(The statement that the civil works do not help prepare military engineers for war duties, is, of course, completely at variance with the reports of the responsible heads of the Departments who insist that much of the war success of the Corps of Engineers is due to their peacetime training on such projects.)

The American Legion was a subject of strong criticism also. The veterans' organization was described in one speech as using "Nazi techniques, of repeating the 'big lie' frequently and of implying from half-truths." It was declared that, as a result, the Legion is "a difficult, selfish group with which there can be no reasonable approach to the solution of these problems."

The problems under discussion when the remarks about the American Legion were made concerned improved Federal personnel management. The Citizens Committee has proposed changes in rules pertaining to veterans' preference in hiring of Government employees. The Legion is opposed.

In his speech attacking the Legion, Col. E. H. Palmer, Chairman, Tennessee Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, declares that the Legion has opposed practically all Hoover Commission recommendations for improved management in the Federal government.

"These," said Colonel Palmer, "are the self-styled 'experts' on management improvement who, so far as we can determine, have never conducted an objective, management study of Federal Government machinery—if any at all. These self-interested 'kingmakers' are the principal objectors to this bill which would immensely improve the lot of veterans seeking Federal employment."

As it has before, the Citizens Committee again took credit for unification of the Armed Forces.

Among the major reforms resulting from the Hoover Commission Report, said Representative Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio), a member of the Commission, "was the unification of our Military Establishments—a vast reform urged by our late fellow-Commissioner James V. Forrestal."

In fact, the military departments were unified under the Department of Defense in its National Security Act of 1947—two years before the Hoover Report was rendered. In 1949 amendments recommended by Mr. Forrestal were enacted by Congress and it is probably these for which the Citizens Committee means to take the credit.

March Airmen Promotions

During March, 897 airmen will be promoted to master sergeant, the Air Force announced this week. For the other ranks, the quotas are as follows: 1999 to technical sergeant, 7989 to staff sergeant, 15,894 to sergeant and 21,699 to corpor-

New Jet Research Plant

Plans for a $30 million jet engine research and development facilities at its jet center in Lockland, Ohio, were announced this week at a press conference in Washington, D. C., by officials of the General Electric Co.

Mr. John W. Belanger, vice president in charge of the G-E Defense Products Group, said that among the programs of the new facilities will be phases of the aircraft atomic power plant project for the Air Force and development of such new jet engines as the XJ-53.

Also announced at the conference was the development of a manufacturing process for producing jet engine compressor blades by fabricating instead of forging them.

Mr. C. W. LaPierre said the new process not only will speed up production but promises great savings both in critical materials and in millions of dollars annually in jet engine costs. He said that General Electric is making available the fabrication process, through the Air Force, to other jet engine manufacturers.

Emphasizing that a major role of large companies is extensive research and engineering work, which creates entirely new industries by developing new ideas and products, Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner, G-E President, said that "large and small businesses are an indispensable team," with General Electric alone depending upon nearly 32,000 suppliers, 92 per cent of them being small businesses.

The G-E president said that the company's defense production will probably equal from 30 to 35 per cent of its total output during 1952, and that the percentage should level off at about that ratio.

Atom Sub Engine

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission has authorized immediate construction at West Milton, N. Y., of General Electric's land based prototype of an atomic power plant for submarines.

Design and construction of this nuclear reactor is under the direct supervision of the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory operated in Schenectady, N. Y., by the General Electric Company for the Commission. The reactor will be located on the four thousand acre site already owned by AEC in West Milton near Schenectady. Construction of buildings and facilities to house the reactor and related equipment will be accomplished by direct contracts under the Schenectady Operations Office of the Commission.

The prototype will be used for final development work leading to construction of an intermediate energy reactor for propulsion of a submarine. The Electric Boat Company of Groton, Conn., is associated with General Electric Company as the submarine builder on this project and is also serving in a similar capacity on a prototype reactor of different design which is being constructed by the Westinghouse Electric Corporation at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho.

General Kirk Retires

Maj. Gen. James Kirk, USA, Chief of the Field Service Division of Army Ordnance, was honored by his many friends and associates at two large parties on Wednesday and Thursday, 20-21 Feb., on the occasion of his retirement after 44 years' service with the Army.

General Kirk received his early education at Sewanee, Tenn., and the University of Florida, after which he attended the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, graduating with the Class of 1912. At first assigned to Coast Artillery, he later transferred to the Ordnance Corps.

He is one of the few officers in the Ordnance Corps entitled to wear the wings of aircraft observer.

In World War I, he was proof officer, testing guns and ammunition, and later commanding officer of the old Sandy Hook Proving Ground. Later, as Chief Proof Officer at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., he was the first to proof fire the 105mm. howitzer of World War II fame, and other standard field pieces.

During World War II, General Kirk was responsible for the re-design and development of all small arms ammunition used by American fighting men in the ground, armored, and air forces.

Paying a farewell tribute to General and Mrs. Kirk were more than a hundred officers and their ladies at a dinner-dance held in the Officers' Club, Ft. McNair, on 21 Feb. The party on Wednesday, 20 Feb., was in the nature of an informal reception at the Army-Navy Country Club and included several hundred friends and associates, both in and out of service, who extended their good wishes to the Kirks in their retirement.

Col. Young 2d Army JAG

Col. Edward Hamilton Young has reported for duty as Judge Advocate of Second Army, Ft. Meade, Md. Since 1947, he has been Chief of the War Crimes Division and Chairman of the Board of Review in the Office of The Judge Advocate General, Department of the Army.

PROSPECTS IN WALL STREET

Reviewed by THE TILLMAN SURVEY

FEBRUARY 23, 1952

LOW-PRICED STOCKS FAVORED BY EXPERTS

Many stock market enthusiasts have been waiting two long years for "Low-Priced Stocks" to join the emphatic spiral to higher stock-market levels.

Their patience was wearing thin until the Canadian Oil stocks gave the tip-off. Then Jeff Lake Sulphur and Motorola and others joined the vigorous rise of higher-priced items.

An entirely different factor is giving strength to the low-priced stocks now, and this factor is a potent one, according to Wall Street experts.

One expert in Providence, for example, feels that the profits "forced" on almost all corporations by reason of inventory increases have enriched small corporations greatly; and that, whereas their former financial situation was ragged, it is now in good shape. He thinks that their common stocks can justifiably rise in price to parallel the real values that exist.

THE TILLMAN SURVEY, a well-known financial Advisory Service since 1923, believes this so strongly that they have recommended 10 low-priced stocks whose average buying level is 14½, whose dividend yield is 8.1%, whose true value is three times that given by the interpretation of today's market prices. Several of these low-priced stocks are selling at recommended prices to equal only 49c per dollar of corporate value. One of them was New Mexico & Arizona Land bought by TILLMAN SURVEY clients at 14.6 in late September.

Austria Tactical Command

A new shoulder sleeve insignia, incorporating the colors symbolic of the three basic combat arms, has been approved by the Army for use by the Tactical Command, U. S. Forces Austria.

Described as "a red square, with rounded corners, with a blue geometric figure, outlined in yellow, formed by four discs centered on the diagonals of the square and overlapping a larger central disc; worn with one point of the square up," the new insignia replaces the old 88th Division patch now in use by the 350th Infantry Regiment and USFA patch worn by other tactical command units.

The USFA patch, a shield of red and white vertical stripes with a blue sword and olive branch, will continue to be worn by headquarters and service units of USFA.

The Tactical Command, headed by Brig. Gen. James C. Fry, USA, includes the 350th Infantry, Regiment, the 4th Armored Reconnaissance Battalion, the 11th AAA Battalion, the 510th Field Artillery Battalion, the 77th Field Artillery Battalion, the 70th Engineer Construction Battalion, the 532nd Engineer Combat Co., the 518th Engr. Combat Company, the 7613 Flight Section, the 516th Signal Company, the 7621 Headquarters and Service Company and the USFA NCO Academy.

Chemical Procurement Report

During fiscal year 1951, the Army Chemical Corps executed more than 30,000 purchase orders and contracts to obtain $230,000,000 worth of materiel, compared with about $300,000,000 to be expended this year.

This was the report made recently by Brig. Gen. H. M. Black, Commanding General, Chemical Corps Materiel Command, to the San Francisco Chapter of the Armed Forces Chemical Association. General Black also visited the San Francisco Chemical Procurement District, commanded by Col. George W. Dorn, during his West Coast inspection.

Munitions Board Vice Chairman

Harold R. Austin, New York industrialist, has been appointed Vice Chairman for Production and Requirements of the Department of Defense Munitions Board.

He succeeds Robert M. Hatfield, jr., who has returned to California where he is serving as part-time Director of the Armed Forces Regional Council for California, Nevada and Arizona.

Mr. Austin was Vice President and Director of Pullman, Inc. and President of the M. W. Kellogg Company and of the Kellogg Corporation. He was associated with the one company for 47 years. He is also the inventor of several devices in the field of heavy industry.

Mr. Austin has been acting as a consultant to the Munitions Board on production matters and will take over his new duties immediately. He is serving the Defense Department without compensation.

Buy Jets In Canada

The U. S. Air Force will purchase a number of F-86E Sabre jet fighters being manufactured by Canadair Ltd. of Montreal, it has been announced jointly in Ottawa with the authority of Defense Production Minister C. D. Howe and Defense Minister Brooke Claxton and in Washington by the Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter.

Canadair Ltd. which was licensed in 1949 by the North American Aviation Co. to make F-86's, has agreed to effect early deliveries of such aircraft from production currently underway.

Engines and other equipment which had previously been purchased by Canada from the U.S. will be incorporated in these aircraft. Procurement of such engines and equipment in the U.S. was initiated early in 1950 to supply F-86s manufactured in Canada for the RCAF.

Deliveries of F-86s to the USAF will be in addition to those manufactured by Canadair—with engines and equipment made in the U.S.—for the RCAF and the RAF.

MAJOR-CYCLE CROSS ROADS

The three major factors which determine the life and death of an investment cycle are in a critical juxtaposition. Stocks are at a new high. Commodities are below a recent record high and business production may make a new high with defense orders.

The answer to this three-way riddle is rather reliably found in a formula used by the TILLMAN SURVEY of Providence solely to measure the terminus of major cycles.

It is obvious that current results from the application of this theory, as published in the TILLMAN SURVEY weekly bulletins of March, are of great moment to those whose business and investment interests hinge on the turn of the major cycle.

As a complete introduction to the many valued features of TILLMAN SURVEY advice, we shall name 10 of the best Low-Priced Stocks in our formal Bulletin of March 17—and tell WHAT TO BUY and WHICH TO SELL.

1st Army Combat Training

An intensive battlefield indoctrination program to qualify all First Army personnel on active duty as potential overseas replacements has been inaugurated by Lt. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, First Army Commander.

Exemption from participation will be limited to those veterans of World War II or the Korean fighting already qualified or who have served in combat under fire, and a limited few who are certified as physically incapable of participation.

Battlefield indoctrination courses, a week in length, will be conducted at Ft. Dix, N. J., Ft. Devens, Mass., and Camp Edwards, Mass. At each of these training stations, courses are scheduled for February, March and April.

Dental Internship Board

The Army Surgeon General has appointed a four man board of officers to select candidates from applications received by the Surgeon General for training under the Army Dental Internship Program.

The members of this board, all from the Surgeon General's Office, are: Brig. Gen. Neal A. Harper, DC, Assistant Chief of the Dental Division; Col. Charles M. Farber, DC, Chief of the Dental Service Branch; Lt. Col. Douglas M. Beebe, DC, dental member of the Research and Development Board and Maj. Louis H. Foubare, MSC, Chief of the Professional Programs Section of the Personnel Division who will act as recorder for the board.

Graduates of dental schools who are selected will be appointed in the grade of first lieutenant and must agree to serve a minimum of two years' active duty including time spent in internship.

New C.G. For 6th Armored Div.

Maj. Gen. James G. Christiansen, USA, until recently Engineer of the Far East Command, will succeed Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., USA, as Commanding General of the 6th Armored Training Division at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

General Sturgis has been reassigned to the European Command.

Col. Fiske Arty Group C.O.

The former deputy G-1 of First Army at Governor's Island, New York, Col. John F. Fiske, has assumed command of the newly-activated 57th Field Artillery Group at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Order of the Kangaroo

The International Order of the Kangaroo, an organization established to foster comradeship between members or former members of the Armed Forces of the United States, Australia and other UN countries who have served in Australia or the Southwest Pacific Area, is now accepting applications for membership.

Col. Lewis Landes, AUS(Ret.), President (or "Bull Roo") of the order announced this week that membership is now open to all ranks.

The organization was established in 1942 by a group of U.S. and allied officers stationed in North Australia, to maintain and cherish the comradeship and associations between military personnel serving in the Southwest Pacific.

Annual meetings of the Order, called "corroborees," are expected to be held alternately in the United States and in Australia, Colonel Landes announced. He said a dinner is planned in Washington this Summer for Lt. Gen. Sir Iven Mackay of the Australian Army, when he arrives for a visit sometime in July.

Directors of the Order elected in 1942 were Colonel Landes, Lt. Col. G. Rohrbacher, Lt. Col. F. W. Marshall, Lt. Col. P. Shockley, Lt. Col. W. T. Harslett (Australian Army), Maj. W. Noall (Australian Army), Maj. W. P. Hardegree, Maj. A. Corpe, Capt. A. Markson, Capt. R. Ingeman, Capt. L. H. Higgins, Capt. G. L. Searle (Australian Army), Capt. T. Graham and Lt. M. Hogan.

Those interested in becoming members should write to Colonel Landes at 160 Riverside Drive, New York City, or, in Australia, to Maj. William Noall, 8 Ottawa Street, South Torrak, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia.
